PREFACE.

---

Texas, included in Spanish Florida, was one of the earliest discovered and explored of the territories now constituting the United States.

But without metallic treasures to tempt Spanish cupidity, and unknown to the colonizing nations on the North Atlantic, this region long remained unsettled.

By mistake a company of Frenchmen under La Salle landed in 1685 on the Texan coast, and made a settlement, which four years later perished in blood. Next, moved by jealousy, came the Spaniards and occupied Texas by a system of presidios and missions till the triumph of the Mexican Revolution in 1821.

Nothing remained of the efforts of France at colonizing Texas save the shadowy memory of a few great names like La Salle, St. Denis, and La Harpe.

The chief impress of Spain upon Texas was in geographical names; and besides these, there was at the end of Spanish rule only feeble settlements around the presidios, and a few stately mission ruins to tell the story of the unavailing labors of the Franciscans.

Retrogression had long set in before the coming of the Anglo-American. Austin's "Original Three Hundred" were the first to inaugurate permanent settlement. The descendants of the home-builders on the Atlantic and in the Mississippi valley were the first home-seekers in Texas. And it was they who builded and compacted the Republic of Texas, developing into orderly communities and uniting for defense against the encroachments of tyranny.

The struggle in Texas was between the Anglo-American and the Indo-Spaniard.

Almost without exception, the raw troops who stormed San Antonio de Bexar, and who annihilated the Mexican army at San Jacinto, were Americans all, and sons not unworthy of the sires of '76. And no truer oblation was ever offered to Liberty than the blood of the Alamo Martyrs and of the Victims of perfidy on the Coleto.

From those heroic times of the Republic have come down to us a corporal's guard of the Texas Veterans, with forms once proud and erect in the ranks of freedom, but now bent with age and infirmity. Surely, Texas, created and ennobled by their sacrifices, can not do too much to honor the Veterans, and make pleasant their declining days.

With the growing importance of Texas has come a desire for more accurate knowledge of its origin and history.

Failures in our historical work have been due chiefly to unscientific methods and inaccessibility of the earliest material. But the treasures of Americana relating to Texas are now coming to light, and the canons of history-writing are being scientifically taught in the University of Texas, and doubtless in our other educational institutions. In the new epoch just at hand the historian of Texas will be expected to go over the whole ground of inquiry, to state nothing except upon authority, and to be loyal to the truth, above man, party, or country.

This Bibliography should be helpful to workers in this field, by pointing out the sources of information, and perhaps also by the critical notes.

For its preparation, I have had exceptional advantages by virtue of my connection with the State Library, it having been part of my duties to collect historical data for Texas.

With reference to its arrangement, I have regretted that I did not see Dr. Week's "Bibliography of the Historical Literature of North Carolina" until near the end of my labors. Other defects I would fain excuse by pleading the difficulties inherent in all pioneer undertakings.

It is not claimed that this work is complete in its list of books; but it is at least a beginning.

The labor of its compilation has been to me a source of pleasure; and my gratification will be only increased should it tend to push investigation into the sources of Texan history.

My acknowledgments are due to many persons; particularly to Dr. S. B. Weeks, of the Department of the Interior; to Mr. F. W. Hodge, of the Smithsonian Institution, for information and suggestions; to Judge R. S. Gould, Dr. G. B. Halsted, and Prof. Geo. P. Garrison, of the University of Texas, for valued courtesies; to E. T. Dumble, State Geologist, Prof. Jacob Bickler, Principal of the German-American Academy, Julius Schutze, Editor Texas Vorwaerts, and H. G. Askew and Chas. Corner, of the Texas Railroad Commission, for various favors; to Dr. Swante Palm, Swedish Consul in Austin; A. C. De Cou, a cultured Canadian (now deceased), and John G. James, late President Agricultural and Mechanical College, for access to their Texas collections and loan of books and documents, and to H. P. N. Gammel, Antiquarian Book Dealer, for practical information as to many Texas books and titles. J. B. Clark, A. B., Librarian of the University of Texas, and Eugene Digges, Esq., my successor in the State Library, have placed me under obligations for special favors received while examining authorities.

The frontispiece is from drawings by Edward Everett, published in Senate Documents, 31st Congress, Vol. 10. (See ANDRADE.)

---

In the parentheses the first figures indicate the time of the birth of the author, and the second figures his death; the initials before indicate the State or country where born, as in "Baker, D. W. C. (Me., 1834-81)." It is meant that Mr. B. was born in Maine, 1834, and died in 1881; and in "Baker, Capt. Mosely (Ala., Texas, 1834-48)." it is meant that Capt. B. came from Alabama to Texas in 1834 and died in 1848.

"Tex." is never used to indicate the birthplace of anyone; and where "Tex., 1851," is found after the name of J. M. Carlisle, it should be Tenn., 1851, meaning that he was born in Tennessee, 1851.

The spelling in the Index is the standard, and corrective of typographical errors in the body of the book, as "Carl, Prinzen," becomes "Carl, Prinz;" "Ed Clarke" becomes "Ed Clark," etc.

As to errors which can not be reached that way, after Du Pratz "Louisiana" should be Louisiane; and after Gigedo-Revilla, "1891" should be 1831; and after Pierce, "Simmons" should be Summers. After Alamo Monument, "Nangle" should be Baker's Texas Scrap Book.

PERSONAL.

The compiler begs leave to refer briefly to a few events of his life:

Left college when a junior at Princeton, in 1858. In the crisis of 1860-61 (following his father, Thos. A. Raines, and his elder brother, Rob't T. Raines), was a warm supporter of Sam Houston and the Union. When war came, believing with Stephen A. Douglas, that in the last extremity, every man ought to fight for his own country, took up arms for Texas, and, as Texas joined the Confederacy, entered the Confederate service under Capt. (later Gen.) R. M. Gano.

Was County Judge and ex officio County Superintendent of Public Instruction for Van Zandt county, 1876-78, and for Wood county, 1886-90.

The present volume is the result of labors begun years before, but never systematized till after his four years service in the State Library.

THE MATERIALS OF EARLY TEXAN HISTORY.

Barely thirty years had elapsed after the coming of Columbus before the islands and the western main, including the great empire of Montezuma, had submitted to the all-conquering arms of Spain.

The Gulf of Mexico had been explored and its general outlines mapped, the Mississippi river appearing on the charts under the name of El Rio Espiritu Santo.

While the rage of conquest was at its highest, Panfilo de Narvaez, in 1526, sought and obtained authority, as a requital for his losses in Mexico, to conquer and govern "the provinces of the main extending from Rio Palmas to the Cape of Florida."

For this enterprise Narvaez provided five ships with 600 men. Among them were Alvar Nuñez, Cabeça de Vaca, Capt. Andres Dorantes, and Alonzo del Castillo Maldonado, Father Juan Xuarez, and Juan Palos, layman, and three other Franciscans. The expedition sailed from San Lúcar June 17, 1527. After various mishaps while wintering among the islands, Narvaez reached the coast of Florida, April 14, 1528, with five vessels, having on board 400 men and eighty horses. Two days later, in a bay called de la Cruz,* the governor landed and took formal possession of the country in the name of his sovereign. About the 1st of May Narvaez struck out into the interior with 300 men and forty horses, while the ships were ordered to proceed along the coast to the first good harbor, and there await his coming. The separation of the forces was final. In vain did the ships hover along the coast for more than a year afterwards. No tidings came of the gallant army last seen entering the everglades of Florida.

*Generally thought to be Tampa Bay, but Jno. Fiske, on the evidence of Sebastian Cabot's map, believes it was Apalache.

After a bewildering march of three months, the Spaniards returned to the sea. Not finding their ships, they built, at a place called Bahia de los Caballos,* five boats each twenty-two cubits in length. Into these the Spaniards, now reduced to 249 men, crowded, and set sail for Las Palmas Sept. 22, 1528. Seven days later the voyagers passed through the channel between the mainland and an island, probably Santa Rosa. Afterwards landing several times for water, they were as often repelled with loss by hostile Indians. About November 1, they passed a great river, whose strong current bore their boats out to sea and freshened the water of the briny ocean far from the shore.

This was evidently the Mississippi. Pursuing the same westerly course six days longer, the boats of Cabega de Vaca and Dorantes were stranded on an island near an unknown coast. The island, estimated at five leagues in length and one-half league in breadth, and only two leagues distant from the mainland at the farthest point, was called by the Spaniards, Malhado. Galveston Island, somewhat longer than this, otherwise suits the description.

After five or six years servitude among savages on the island, Cabega, with an only companion, crossed over to the mainland, and proceeded down the coast, passing four large rivers, and stopping at a bay they supposed to be Espiritu Santo. Here, from some of his countrymen, Cabega learned the fate of the other boats, to-wit: that one had been "upset at the confluence of the rivers," drowning four men; that one boat had landed lower down the coast, and the crew, being too weak to resist, were all killed by savages; and that the last, in which was Narváez himself, with one or two companions, slipped its stone anchor during a norther and was driven to sea, and never heard of more. In the course of six years all the unfortunates, except nine, had, from various causes, perished. And four of these, Cabega de Vaca, Andrés Dorantes, Alonzo del Castillo Maldonado, and Estévanico, a Barbary negro, plotted an escape to the Spanish settlements in Mexico.

*Thought by Geo. W. Bancroft to be the harbor of St. Marks.

In September, 1534, Cabeça de Vaca and his friends, commending themselves to God, ran off from their Indian masters, and began their journey across the continent. Their course seems at first to have been westward; but after a few days travel, they halted and rested eight months with the Avavares, one of the coast tribes.

Resuming their journey when the prickly pears were scarcely ripe, they proceeded southwest, parallel with the gulf coast, till they crossed the Rio Grande* and came in sight of mountains.† Thence, on account of the hostility of the coast tribes, they turned‡ northward, ascending the Rio Grande along the plains at the base of the mountains up to the Conchos, and thence probably along the route conjectured by H. H. Bancroft to the

---

* This stream was breast deep, and wide as the Guadalquivir at Seville, which Buckingham Smith says he found to be 100 paces. It must have been the Rio Grande, as Mr. E. T. Dumble, the State Geologist, informs me there is no other river west of Espiritu Santo Bay whose normal waters are of that depth and width.

† Called San Saba Mountains by B. Smith, evidently in Mexico. There are no mountains of that name in Texas.

‡ "We took our course along the plain, near the mountains, which we believed not to be distant from the coast, where the people are all evil disposed, and we considered it preferable to travel inland; for those of the interior are of a better condition, and treated us mildly, etc. . . . Moreover, we chose this course because, in traversing the country, we should learn many particulars of it, so that should God our Lord be pleased to take any of us thence, and lead us to the land of the Christians, we might carry that information and news of it."—(Buckingham Smith's Trans. Cabeça's Relation, edition 1871.)

The reasons for the turn northward when the travelers were beyond the Rio Grande and near the gulf, and but a few hundred miles distant from Panuco, seem satisfactory, but they never passed the 30th parallel of latitude. Whereas, according to Smith's first theory, Cabeça began his journey towards the north pole, and went hundreds of miles in that direction before turning towards the center of the continent, making a detour of thousands of miles. H. H. Bancroft errs the same way in making the overland travelers begin their journey towards the north pole, though the starting place is rightly given as being near Espiritu Santo Bay, Texas.

Rio Petatlán, on the Pacific slope. The wanderers reached San Miguel April 1, 1536, without seeing on their ten months continuous journeying from sea to sea any trace of idolatry among the natives. Everywhere Cabeça and his party were highly honored. The Viceroy Mendoza and the Marquez del Valle welcomed them to the City of Mexico, which they entered in a kind of triumphal procession in the latter part of July.

During their two months sojourn in the capital the wanderers made a map of their travels for the Viceroy and wrote a Letter to the Audiencia of Espanola, giving an account of the fate of the expedition and of their subsequent fortunes. In the Letter mention is made of sand hills on the Panuco side of Espiritu Santo Bay.

As to the locality of the shipwreck of the Narvaez expedition, Malhado Island, in its relation to the Mississippi, is a determining factor in the question. Malhado, from its description and environments, must have been either modern Santa Rosa or Galveston Island. If Santa Rosa, and east of the Mississippi, then the great river whose currents drove the Spaniards' boats to sea and sweetened the ocean waters so far from the land must have been one of the petty gulf rivers of peninsular Florida!

The Mississippi, on this theory, disappears entirely from the record, not having been passed at sea or described at its crossing elsewhere! A thing almost incredible, that this mighty stream, later described with such particularity by all the chroniclers of the De Soto expedition, should have been crossed without special mention by Cabeça!

If Galveston was Malhado, then the great river five or six days eastward sail in open boats would reasonably be the Mississippi, and the bay westward down the coast supposed to be Espiritu Santo, would be the Texan bay of that name to-day, and the intervening rivers would be the Brazos, the Colorado, the Navi-dad, and Lavaca.

The sand hills referred to in the statements of the overland travels in Mexico as being on the Pánuco side of Espiritu Santo Bay would be the sand hills noted on the west side of Espiritu

Santo Bay by the United States Coast Survey* in 1859, and the high hills to the south would be the elevations near Corpus Christi Bay.

Of course, in these conditions there is only a general correspondence with the record. Exact conformity in particulars, as the gulf region is now known, could not be expected under the circumstances, on any part of the known route.

It only remains to add the evidence of physical geography. The country in which Cabeza and his party ran off from their masters, and whence they finally began their ten months continuous travel to San Miguel, was a country of wide extended plains, making off northwardly from the sea, and over which roamed countless herds of buffalo, and a land where flourished the cactus and the mesquit.

It is perhaps needless to say that these conditions were never true of the gulf coast east of the Mississippi, and that, with the exception of the buffalo range, recently extinct, they exist in full force to-day in Southwestern Texas.

There was nothing which Cabeza so greatly desired as to be governor himself of that Florida in which he had suffered so much. In September, 1537, he arrived at the Spanish Court, only to learn that De Soto had anticipated him in the appointment. De Soto sought to have Cabeza attend him as a subordinate; but no terms of agreement could be reached. These two remarkable men finally parted, one to go to Florida and his death, and the other to South America and disgrace.

*Report U. S. Coast Survey 1859, p. 325: The northwest shore "of the Bay of San Antonio (which is the northern bend of Espiritu Santo Bay)" is the delta of the Gaudalupe, a low alluvial formation, scarcely raised above the level of the adjacent waters, and covered with a dense growth of cane-grass, jungle and forest trees. On the west shore the elevated prairie also comes to the bay in a bluff or bank of twenty feet, and is likewise dotted over with the houses of settlers, and with oak or hackberry trees. The soil is fertile, the range for stock excellent, and the locality is said to be very healthy. At one place on this side a singular range of sand hills, known as the Sand Mounds, approaches the shore. The highest peak is about seventy-five feet above the bay. The mounds are covered with bushes and the valleys between them filled with trees, so that at a distance of five or six miles the whole presents the appearance of a forest of live oak or similar timber, forming a marked feature in that otherwise level prairie region.

Before Cabeça's departure, however, he wrote a complete narrative of the Narvaez expedition, entitled "La relacion que dio Aluar nuñez cabeça de vaca de lo acaescido en las Indias en la armada donde yua por gouernador Páphilo de narbáez," etc., and published at Zamora in 1542.

In 1555 a second edition appeared, in connection with another work, styled together, "La relacion y comentarios del gouernador Aluar nuñez cabeça de vaca, de lo acaescido en las dos jornadas que hizo a las Indias."

The "Comentarios" was an account of Cabeça's government of Rio de la Plata, and written by his secretary, Pero or Pedro Hernandez.

So Cabeça, besides being the first European explorer of Texas, the first overland traveler across the continent, and the first to observe and describe the buffalo on the range, was also the first historian of Texas.

The letter which Cabeça wrote in 1536, in conjunction with Andres Dorantes, to the Audiencia of Española, and his book called "La relacion," etc., may be considered the first contribution to Texan history.

The next entry into Texas was by Coronado in 1540-42.

Pedro Castañeda de Nagera is the principal historian of the Coronado expedition across the Texan panhandle at that time. His work has never been published, and we barely know it save through the French translation of Ternaux-Compans.*

Included in this Ternaux-Compans publication is also a French translation of Jaramillo's account of the expedition, shorter but well written, with some interesting details. Two anonymous writers on the subject are also noted in the text immediately following Jaramillo.

On the death of De Soto at the mouth of Red River in 1542, the army, under Muscogo or Moscoço, marched 150 leagues westward into Texas; the next year Muscogo coasted with his men in seven brigantines, along its shores en route to New Spain. The whole story has three chroniclers, the Fidalgo Deluas or gentleman of Elvas, Biedma, and Garcilaso de la Vega, all noted in the text. The first is a loose, desultory statement, lacking in nearly all the essentials of history; the second is a mere compendium, too brief to yield much information; the third, though written from materials gathered forty years later, is much the most satisfactory. There is a substantial agreement among these writers, though Garcilaso de la Vega puts De Soto's original force at about 900 men, or 300 more than the estimate of the other two. He also makes mention of Indians on the Texan coast, which the others do not.

The narratives of the several Rio Grande expeditions which occasionally trod the soil of Texas from 1582-99, are recorded in various volumes of inedited documents of Pacheco, but are not accessible to the general reader, and what is worse, there are no French translations, or English versions besides Purchas. The leading authors, however, such as Espejo, Oñate, Villagr , Padre Salmeron and others, are noted in their proper places in the text.

Otermin and Escalante give an account of the origin of Isleta, showing that it was founded in 1682 as a refuge for friendly Indians during the Pueblo Rebellion.* Isleta is the oldest town in Texas, but there is no ancient authority whatever for the statement made in some late histories that it existed in 1540, and was visited by Coronado.

Joutel's Journal Historique, published in 1713, and the Margry Papers, lately brought to light, are the best original authorities on French colonization in Texas, though Le Clercq's " tablissement de la Foi" and Hennepin's "Nouveau Voyage," embracing some of the same subject matter, appeared in 1691 and 1698 respectively. French's Historical Collection of Louisiana contains many valuable documents on La Salle's Texan colony, including an English version of Joutel, Tonty, Anastase Douay, etc.

As to the Spanish colonization, the authorities came later, and are nearly all cited in Bancroft's Hist. Tex. and North Mex. States. I shall only refer here, among the principal books, to Cavo's "Tres Siglos," with supplement by Bustamente, Villa Señor y Sanchez's Theatro Americano, Revilla-Gigedo's Instrucciones, and De Page's Voyages autour du Monde. And among the MSS. relating to the Missions, to Father Manzanet's (incorrectly cited as Masanet by Bancroft) Carta, and Diario que hicieron los Padres Misioneros, Morfi's Memorias para la Historia de Texas, and Father Lopez' "Condicion de los Misiones de Texas, 1785," and to Altamira's Testimonio de un Parecer, 1744, and Bonilla's Breve Compendio, 1772, classed among the historical MSS.

In conclusion, the writer has tried to point out the true foundation of Texan history in relation to European colonization, a purpose which, so far as he knows, has not been previously attempted. If that has been accomplished, the work will be appreciated by Texans, and perhaps by students generally of American history.

Like Channing and other abolitionists, Mr. A. held that it was the right and duty of the Free States to dissolve the Union in the event of the annexation of Texas. This expression of State sovereignty was a source of embarrassment to the distinguished statesman when a Union delegate to the Peace Convention in 1861.

Adams, Jno. (nom de plume). Reply to John Quincy Adams and the other Twenty Members of Congress. M. Star, Nov. 2, 4, 7, 1843.

By this treaty, negotiated between Mr. A. for the U. S. and Luis de Onís for Spain, the western limit of Louisiana was extended from the Arroyo Hondo (the conventional line established by France and Spain) to the Sabine; and Texas—then a Spanish province—lost about 10,000 square miles of territory.

— And Twenty other Members of Congress. Address to the people of the Free States, remonstrating against the annexation of Texas. March, 1843.

Extract: "We hesitate not to say that annexation [of Texas], effected by any proceeding of the Federal Government, or any of its departments, will be identified with dissolution. We not only assert that the people of the Free States ought not to submit to it, but we say with confidence they will not submit to it."

The Free State opposition to annexation was caused by hatred of slavery, perpetuated in Texas as far as laws could perpetuate it. It would have been otherwise had the Texans supported Austin in his efforts to enforce the provisions of the Mexican Constitution (Federal and State) abolishing slavery. But on the evolution of the "Texas Question" in American politics, the influx of Southern emigrants overwhelmed the old settlers of Texas and utterly changed the original character and policies of Austin's colony.

— Speech of, upon the rights of the people, men and women, to petition on the freedom of speech and of debate, in the House of Representatives of the United States, on the resolutions of seven State Legislatures and the petitions of more than 100,000 petitioners, relating to the annexation of Texas. Delivered in House of Representatives of the United States June 16 to July 7, 1838. 131 pp., 8vo. Washington, 1838.

These were the Legislatures of Rhode Island, Vermont, Ohio, Michigan, Massachusetts, New York and Pennsylvania, all hostile to the admission of Texas into the Union.

The Massachusetts Legislature went so far as to declare "that no act done or compact made for such purpose by the Government of the United States will be binding on the States or the people." Mr. A. supported these resolutions with his usual zeal and ability when expounding State Rights.

— Address to his constituents, Sept. 17, 1842. Nile's Reg., Oct. 29, 1842.

A caustic denunciation of the policy of the United States towards Mexico, with a severe arraignment of Texas for the Santa Fe Expedition. But Texas, as a belligerent power, had the right to invade the territory of her belligerent enemy. The fact that the Texans carried along a large quantity of merchandise for trade, did not give a piratical character to the Expedition. If the Democratic administration leaned towards the Texans, the opposition openly sided with the Mexicans. See Bustamente's "Espedicion de los Tejanos."

Adams, Joseph T. Lecture on the subject of re-annexing

Texas to the United States. Pam., 24 pp., 4to. New Bedford (Mass.), 1845.

Favors it on the ground of commercial benefits to the North. The manner of re-annexing a country that never before belonged to the Union is not explained satisfactorily.

Afflick, Mrs. Mary Hunt (Ky., 1847). Poems: Gates Ajar, Lilies, Beside the Sea, and Daylight on the Wreck. Dixon's Poets and Poetry of Texas.

Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas, at College Station, near Bryan. (See R. F. Smith's Historical Sketch A. & M. College.) Organized July, 1871, and set in operation October, 1876. Based on act of Congress 1862, July 2, entitled, "An act donating public lands to the several States and Territories which may provide colleges for the benefit of agriculture and the mechanic arts." Agricultural and Experiment Station in connection with the A. & M. College. Annual catalogues, biennial reports, and periodical bulletins.

An educational institution of high character, growing in popular favor, though but few of its graduates engage in agricultural pursuits.

Alaman, Lucas (1792-1853), Sec. Foreign and Home Affairs, Rep. to the Sovereign Constituent Congress [Mexico], 1823.

As to the Missions, then in extremis, the Secretary recommended the distribution of lands to the Indians, giving them from the funds of the missions money sufficient to cultivate them. Besides the missions of California, "there are others," says report, "in a lamentable state of ruin, particularly those of the province of Texas, completely deserted and abandoned."

——— Historia de Mexico desde los primeros movimientos que prepararon su Independencia in el año de 1808, hasta la Epoca presente. 5 vols., 8vo. Mexico, 1849-52.

Condensed, with corrections by Liceaga in 1868. A life sketch of Alaman in the first 39 pages. The standard history of Mexico, in spite of its high coloring with the author's anti-democratic, anti-American prejudices. Clear and elegant in style. Many valuable official documents in appendices. The events since 1824 are hurried to an abrupt conclusion—rather disappointing to those who expected an elaborate treatment of the Texan revolution.

——— Law of 6th of April, 1830, prohibiting further American colonization and further entry of American emigrants without permits from the nearest Mexican consular agents in U.S. Bancroft's Hist. Tex., Vol. ii., p. 113; Yoakum's Hist. Tex., Vol. i., p. 278.

This law was prompted by the memorial of Alaman (while Secretary of Relations) to the Mexican Congress. It could not be enforced as to American emigrants, but it exasperated Americans and Texans alike. The newcomers, as immigrants after this time were known, finally became the controlling power in Texas, and precipitated the Revolution. Among their leaders were Travis, Archer, Rusk and Houston.

A plea for the life of Santa Anna, then in jeopardy from a faction in the army who demanded his trial and execution for the murder of Fanin and his men. Mr. A. was in 1837 one of the founders of the city of Houston, to which place the capital of the Republic was soon removed.

Almanacs, Texas. See RICHARDSON & Co.

Almonte, Juan N. (1804-69), Aid to Santa Anna. Noticia Estadística sobre Tejas. 96 pp., 16mo. Mexico, 1835.

The statistical information on Texas was Almonte's Official Report to Santa Anna after extensive travel and observation in Texas in the year 1834. "The statistics of Almonte," says Mr. Kennedy, "form the proudest testimonial to the labors of those fearless and persevering spirits who first rendered the golden glebe of Texas tributary to the enjoyments of civilized man, and supply a conclusive answer to the charges brought against the Texans by persons who, in the fervor of a philanthropic enthusiasm in behalf of the Indian and the Negro, are ready to sacrifice not only time and money, but the solemn obligations of truth and justice."

Almonte noted one school in Department of Bexar supported by the municipality, and a subscription school near Brazoria, in Department of Brazos, and three common schools in Department of Nacogdoches. The wealthy planters sent their children to the schools of the United States. Only such parts of the "Noticia" were published as met the approval of Santa Anna. Out of print in separate form, but found in part in the appendix to Filisola's Memorias. An interesting link in the chain of Texan history.

— Diplomatic correspondence as Mexican Minister to the United States with Mr. Upshur, U. S. Secretary of State, on the contingent incorporation of Texas into the Union. Nov. 3 to Dec. 1, 1843. Young's Mexico, Appendix.

In which Almonte "declares by express orders of his government, that on sanction being given by the Executive of the Union to the incorporation of Texas into the United States, he will consider his mission ended, seeing that, as the Secretary of State will have learned, the Mexican Government is resolved to declare war so soon as it receives intimation of such an act." And when the annexation resolutions passed Congress and received the executive sanction, Almonte accordingly protested, and demanding his passports left Washington. This abrupt severance of official relations between Mexico and the United States, coupled with the Minister's protest and previous communications, was virtually a declaration of war.

A print of a famous MS. from the Archives of Bexar, but now in the State library, with these words after title, and fixing the date: "Un Quartillo Sello Quarto Un Quartillo año del Mil-Sete, ciento y Quar-ento." The introduction consists of 23 lines signed El Marques de Altamira, and there are 21 leaves in the MS., numbered on every alternate page, and divided into 99 paragraphs. From this excellent compend of the history of Texas, we learn that the name of the province was derived from the Tejas Indians, a friendly tribe that dwelt between the Trinity and the upper Neches.

The official report of the dismantling of the Alamo, the evacuation of San Antonio, and the retreat of the Mexican garrison out of Texas. The present Alamo building, repaired and patched up with a roof in 1849 for use as a depot of army stores, utterly obscures the dilapidation wrought by Andrade. Only the walls of the convent retain their identity. See frontispiece for a correct view of the dismantled and ruined Alamo.

Andrew, Bishop Jas. O., M. E. Church. Pastoral Address to the Methodists of Texas. M. Star, Jan. 9, 1844.

When the Texas Annual Conference was in session at Huntsville, December 13, 1843. The conference had then two districts and thirty appointments. The M. E. Church of the United States separated this year into two branches, occasioned by the conduct of Bishop Andrew in holding a few slaves acquired by marriage.

— Life sketch of. De Cordova's Texas.

Dr. Archer perhaps did more than any one else to prepare the minds of the Texans for separation from Mexico, and he has therefore been justly called the "Father of the Texas revolution."

Archer, W. S. (1789-1855), Senator from Va. Speech on The Treaty for the Annexation of Texas. U. S. Senate, May, 1844.

The Senator opposed the treaty in quite an able speech. As to the secession threats in the Free States he said: "Let the North and the East, with or without cause, and more especially from a temper of insolent intrusion into concerns not submitted to the common jurisdiction, manifest the inclination to dissolve the Union, and the South was ready to stand by itself. For one Southern member, if he should be here when proceedings tending to this issue should be precipitated, he should be found, and recommending to his coadjutors to be found, calm as a summer's morning, affording indication by no word or manner of any feeling of irritation, or other feeling than contempt for unparalleled and suicidal folly." The treaty was defeated.

— Report on Annexation of Texas. Senate Doc. No. 79, 28th Cong., 2d sess., Vol. iii. . 23 pp.

Power of government to acquire foreign territory; department of government in which this power resides; treaty-making power; power of Congress to admit new States; rejection of joint resolution of House of annexation of Texas recommended. Senator A. persistently opposed the annexation of Texas by arguments deemed unanswerable; but the administration was not to be turned aside from its predetermined purpose.

In resistance to this revolution in favor of the Central system, Zacatecas first took up arms, but was crushed in May, 1835. Texas entered the field later on—at first for the Federal Constitution of 1824, and when deserted by her Mexican associates, for independence.

The expression segunda parte is misleading, as this is a complete book in itself on the mission work of the province of Querétaro, the first chronicler of the earlier work of the same province being Espinosa, nearly fifty years before. Important authority on the Franciscan mission work in Texas.

An account of Audubon's visit to capital of Texas in May, 1837, and his interview with President Sam Houston. "He wore a large gray coarse hat. . . . He was dressed in a fancy velvet coat, and trousers trimmed with broad gold lace, and around his neck was tied a cravat somewhat in the style of '76. He received us kindly, was desirous of retaining us for awhile, and offered us every facility in his power. . . . We were severally introduced by him to the different members of his cabinet and staff, and at once asked to drink grog with him, which we did, wishing success to the new Republic." Williams' Sam Houston.

— Exposition made by the Ayuntamiento and inhabitants of Austin's colony explanatory of the late commotions, and adhering to the plan of Santa Anna. Adopted July 27, 1832. Communication from San Felipe de Austin. Pam., 8vo. Brazoria, 1832, and in appendix to Mrs. Holley's Texas Letters.

Col. Mexia, having heard of the capture of Velasco by John Austin's forces, sailed to Texas with a considerable armament to crush the rebellion, if any existed, against Mexican authority. He was but too glad to learn that the Texan colonists, as the friends of Santa Anna, were not fighting for independence, but only against the usurper Bustamente.

Austin, Moses (1765-1821). Memorial to Spanish authorities in Mexico for permission to colonize Texas with 300 families from Louisiana. Bexar, Nov., 1820.

This document, rendered into Spanish and endorsed by Governor Martinez and other officials of Bexar, was forwarded to Gen. Arredondo, commander of the Eastern Internal Provinces, at Monterey. The grant was received by Austin at his home in Missouri a short time before his death, June, 1821.

By virtue of this instrument Austin obtained $4000 as a necessary fund to start his colonial enterprise, which Austin repaid in premium lands.

— Projet of a Constitution for the Republic of Mexico. 1823.

While in Mexico, 1823, Austin delivered a copy of his Projet to his confidential friend, Ramos Arizpe, for consideration. As chairman of the Committee on the Constitution in the Constitutional Congress, Arizpe reported the Constitution, which was adopted and known as the Constitution of 1824. And this seems to have been but the elaboration of Austin's Projet, with such changes as were necessary to adapt it to the genius of the Mexicans. See Bryan's Collection Austin MSS.

— Translation of the Laws, Orders and Contracts on Colonization from January, 1821, up to this time, in virtue of which Col. Stephen F. Austin has introduced and settled foreign emigrants in Texas, with an explanatory introduction to the settlers in what is called Austin's Colony in Texas. 70 pp., 12mo. San Felipe de Austin, Texas. Printed by Godwin B. Cotton, Nov., 1829.

This was the first book in English ever published in Texas. It contains, besides the "Laws, Orders and Contracts," the civil and criminal code devised by Austin and used for the government of his colony till the laws of Coahuila and Texas were extended in 1828 over the province.

— Esposicion al Publica sobre los Asuntos de Tejas. 32 pp., 8vo, pap. Megico, 1835.

There being no published life of Austin, the following brief sketch is appended: Virginia, 1793, and Missouri in 1797. A schoolboy in Connecticut, 1804-8. A graduate at Transylvania University, 1811. Lawyer. Member Missouri Territorial Legislature, 1813. Adjutant and inspector 8th Missouri regiment. Circuit judge Territory Arkansas, 1819-20. Founder Texan colony, 1821-22. Rank of colonel in Mexican army, with autocratic powers, acting on occasion as legislator, judge and soldier, 1823-27. Commissioner of Texas to Mexico and (1833-35) prisoner in the dungeon of the inquisition, 1834. Commander Texan army, campaign of Bexar, Oct. and Nov., 1835. Commissioner to the U. S., 1836. Secretary of State in the Republic of Texas.

Austin's proper place in history is with founders of colonies and builders of commonwealths. All that Penn did on the Delaware, Baltimore on the Chesapeake, or Oglethorpe on the Savannah, Austin did on the Gulf, and more; standing by his colonists, sharing their privations, breasting with them the storm of battle, and laying down his life among them, leaving his ashes on the banks of the Brazos, "in the midst of the people he loved so well."

—— Blessed Saint Certainty. 16mo. Boston, 1881.

—— The Ten Theophanies; the appearance of our Lord to man before his birth. 12mo. New York, 1883.

—— The Making of a Man; a sequel to His Majesty Myself. Anon. New York, 1881.

The above moral stories indicate the character of the preacher's peculiar ideas on the philosophy of life. The Ten Theophanies, his best work, a prose poem, fully appreciated by the spiritually-minded only.

—— Church Planting in Texas. Cath. Pres., Vol. i., 282.

Bailey, Rufus W., Pres. Austin College. The Issue. A series of letters on slavery.

—— The Family Preacher. A book of sermons.

—— The Mother's Request. Letters to daughters.

—— Primary English Grammar.

— English Grammar.

Balbontin, Manuel. La Invasion Americana, 1846-48. Mexico.

This account of the American invasion was written soon after the war, by a lieutenant of artillery in the Mexican army.

Baldwin, Joseph (Penn., 1827), A. M., LL. D. Elementary Pedagogy. Vol. i. Art of School Management. 504 pp., 12mo. New York, 1881.

Published while the author was superintendent of the Missouri State Normal at Kirksville.

— Vol. ii. Elementary Psychology and Education. 299 pp., 12mo. New York, 1887. (Vol. vi Int. Ed. Ser.).

The author was then superintendent of the Texas State Normal at Huntsville.

— Psychology Applied to the Art of Teaching. 381 pp., 12mo. New York, 1893. Vol. xix Int. Ed. Ser.

A Spanish edition for Spanish speaking countries. The author is now Professor of Pedagogy in University of Texas. His works rank high in the educational world.

Bancroft, Geo., Ph. D., LL. D., D. C. L. (1800-1891). History of the United States. 6 vols. 1834-1854.

Last revised edition in 1883-1884. Volume I of this standard history of the United States, last edition, has been much changed to incorporate the results of modern historical research as to the gulf region of the Union. It now appears that the Narvaez expedition was wrecked on the Texan coast in 1528, and that Pineda discovered the Mississippi at its mouth, in 1519.

Bancroft, H. H. (1832). History of Texas and the North Mexican States. 2 vols., 8vo. San Francisco, 1884-1889.

Of the 773 pages of Vol. i, only about 120 are devoted directly to Texas, but in Vol. ii Texas gets 581 pages. The other matter of these volumes, however, throws more or less light on Texas. In spite of his prejudices, Mr. B. has given us an excellent history of Texas, and pointed out more than any other writer the sources of Texan history. In fact, the chief merit of his work is the exhaustive list of authorities cited in the footnotes. Were I restricted to a single book on Texas, I would, without hesitation, take Bancroft's History; for in that I would learn something of most other writers on Texas, as well as the facts of our history.

Bandelier, Ad. F. A. (1830). Historical Introduction to Studies among the Sedentary Indians of New Mexico. Part 1. 33 pp. Boston, 1881. Pueblo Indians and Coronado Expedition.

— Alvar Nunez Cabeça de Vaca, the first overland traveler of European descent, and his journey from Florida to the Pacific coast, 1528-1536. Mag. West. Hist., July, 1886.

— Final Report of Investigation among the Indians of the Southwestern United States, carried on mainly in the years 1880-1885. Part 1. Boston, 1890.

Barbe, Marbois. Histoire de la Louisiane et de la Cession de cette Colonie par la France aux Etats Unis. Map and official documents. 485 pp., 8vo. Paris, 1829.

In this history of Louisiana, and of its cession to the United States, the author takes occasion to say: "Texas is one of the finest countries in the world, of whose existence Europeans, so engrossed in making conquests in America, seem up to this time to have no knowledge." Also an account of the old French colony at Camp Asylum on the Trinity.

Barber, Jno. W., and Howe, Henry. Our Whole Country. 2 vols., 8vo. Cinti., 1861, New York, 1863.

Vol. i., pp. 1333-84, devoted to Texas history, topography, and biography. Excellent illustrations of the historic places. Interesting and authentic.

Barbey, Theodore, Texan Consul at Paris. Le Texas. 22 pp., 8vo., pap. Paris, 1841.

Texan commerce and import duties noted after a little description of the Republic.

Barcena, José Maria Roa. Recuerdos de la Invasión Norte Americana, 1846-48. Mexico, 1883.

Barcia, Andres Gonzales. Ensayo Cronologico.

On page 294, account of the destruction of Fort St. Louis on Lavaca. See French's Historical Collections Louisiana, Pt. iv.

— Carta en que se da noticia de un viaje hecho à la Bahia de Espiritu Santo y de la poblacion que tenian ahi los Franceses. Coleccion de varios documentos para la Historia de la Florida. May 18, 1689.

Anonymous letter by one who attended Leon's expedition, agreeing in substance with the official journal, but not signed. The original in the archives of Simancas, and a copy in the collection of Muñoz.

Barr, Amelia Edith (1831). Remember the Alamo. 431 pp., 12 mo. New York, 1888.

A romance of the Texan war for independence. The author, an English woman, lived in Texas in 1854-1869.

Barrow, Jno. Facts Relating to Northeast Texas. 8vo. London, 1849.

The author visited Texas in company with J. E. Smith in the interest of British emigration.

Bartlett, Jno. R., U. S. Commissioner. Personal Narrative of Explorations and Incidents in Texas, New Mexico, California, Sonora and Chihuahua, connected with the U. S. and Mexican Boundary Commission during the years 1850, '51, '52 and '53. In two vols., with map and illustrations. 1130 pp., 8vo. London and New York, 1854. The routes through Texas were from Indianola to El Paso via San Antonio, and from Ringgold Barracks, on the lower Rio Grande, to Corpus Christi.

A valuable contribution to the physical geography of that part of Texas.

Batty, F. A. & Co. Biographical Souvenir of the State of Texas. 950 pp., 4to. Chicago.

About 1400 sketches, some of prominent worthy men, and others of men with more money than worth.

Beach, Miss Katie (Luling). Christmas on the Frontier. The Houston Post.

— A New Year's Ode.

Author mentioned in Mrs. Taylor's "The Women Writers of Texas."

Beadle, J. H. Western Wilds, and the Men who Redeem Them. An authentic narrative, embracing an account of seven years travel and adventures in the Far West. 8vo. Cinti., 1879.

Has a narrative of the Snively Expedition, professedly by one of Warfield's men. See Bancroft's Arizona and New Mexico, p. 329.

Bean, Ellis P. (Tenn., 1782-1846). Memoir of Adventures in Texas and Mexico. An autobiography. In appendix to Yokum.

Including an account of Philip Nolan's last expedition into Texas and the particulars of the death of that famous pioneer. The whole story seems a veritable romance.

Bell, Jas. H. (Virginia, Texas, 1836-94). Sketch of the Life of S. F. Austin. Tex. Al., 1859, pp. 153-60; first published in full DeBows Review, Feb., 1858.

A good compend.

— Union speech, Austin, Dec. 1, 1860.

Eloquent, and all but convincing.

Bell, P. H. (Va., -1894), Governor 1850-52. Messages on Santa Fe, Public Debt, etc.

— Speech on bill for paying the creditors of Texas. H. R., Feb. 6, 1855. Pam., 7 pp. Washington, 1855.

Favoring full payment of debt.

Bentley, Mrs. M. Johnston. A Poem: A Day and a Night.

The fate of a drunkard's wife. Dixon's Poets and Poetry of Texas.

Benton, Thos. H. (N. C., 1782-1858, Mo.), U. S. Senator Mo. Speech advocating acknowledgment of Texan independence. U. S. Senate, July 1, 1836. Cong. Globe.

"The best speech yet delivered on Texas," says the T. T. R. of Sept., 1836. It has a respectable notice of Austin and a very fine encomium on Houston, with an expression of abhorrence at the Mexican methods of warfare. This speech deserves an honorable place in the historical literature of Texas.

— Speech on Annexation of Texas. U. S. Senate, Feb. 5, 1845. Cong. Globe.

Mr. B. opposed annexation unless the consent of Mexico could be obtained, as a boundary dispute would follow annexation, and perhaps excite a war between the United States and Mexico.

— Thirty Years View; or a History of the Working of the American Government from 1820 to 1850. 2 vols., 8vo. New York, 1854-56.

A valuable political compend, in great demand immediately after its publication. The Texas question in American politics has full treatment.

Berlandier, L. y Th. R. Diario de Viage de la Comision de limites que puso el Gobierno de la Republica. 2 maps. Mexico, 1850.

This journal of the Mexican Boundary Commissioner is not without interest.

Berlandier, Luis. Swiss Scientist. Travels in Mexico and Texas, 1826-1834.

Statistical notes, early settlement, and Indian tribes between the Sabine and Pacific. 7 vols. MSS. once in Smithsonian Institute.

— Travels in Mexico, 1828-1830.

Interesting notes of the early settlers of Texas by the Spanish and French, with account of the ancient Indian tribes. 3 vols. MSS.

Bernard, Dr. J. H. A Journal of the Massacre of Fannin's Command.

First published in the Goliad Guard, 1875, and later in the Galveston News, as edited by Judge D. D. Claiborne. The author was one of Fannin's surgeons, saved from the general massacre for the benefit of his professional skill, and a cultured gentleman, entirely reliable in his statements. This journal is important as a vindication of Col. Fannin from the charge of disobedience to Houston's order to retreat, and as evidence to show that he surrendered his army to Urrea as prisoners of war. Besides, it has the only muster roll of Fannin's command, all the others in vogue being copies. Contains also an account of the dismantling of the Alamo.

Beveridge, Mrs. T. H. A Volume of Poetry. East Texian, July 18, 1857.

One of Mrs. B.'s poems, "Sunbeams," is found in Baker's Texas Scrap Book. Where is the volume of poetry now?

Beyer, Moritz. Das Auswanderungsbuch, oder Führer und Rathgeber bei der Auswanderung nach Nord-Amerika und Australien mit Berücksichtigung von Texas. 236 pp., 8vo. Leipzig, 1846. 2 maps.

This Emigrants' Guide to North America and Australia gives some consideration to Texas.

Bickler, Jacob (Ger., 1849), A. M., Principal German and English Academy, Austin. Address as President before the State Teachers' Association at Dallas. Texas School Journal, June, 1886.

— Reports as Superintendent public schools, Galveston, 1887-90.

The Galveston public schools, while under the superintendency of Prof. Bickler, received one of the three gold medals awarded to American schools for excellence of educational exhibits at the Paris Exposition Universelle, 1889.

A leading educator in Texas for more than twenty years, and author of the resolution to establish the Department of Pedagogy at the University of Texas.

Biedma, Luis Hernandez de. Relaçam del suceso de la jornada que hizo Hernando de Soto.

This narrative of the De Soto expedition was translated into English from the Portugese by Wm. B. Rye, and printed for the Hakluyt Society, London, 1851. 27 pp. Index and map. English versions also found in Purchas Pilgrimes, Peter Force's Tracts and French's Historical Collections of Louisiana and Bradford Club Series No. 5. Ternaux-Compans published a French version. Paris, 1841. Title of Spanish version is "Relacion de la Isla de la Florida." Flor. Col. Doc., 1857.

Muscoco, De Soto's successor, led his army from the mouth of Red river about 500 miles westward en route to New Spain. After reaching the limit of the corn country in Texas, the Spaniards became discouraged and returned to the Mississippi. Biedma's record is meagre, but he tells of an Indian village called Naudacho, which is perhaps our modern Nacogdoches. The Spaniards next descended the Mississippi to the sea, in brigantines of their own construction, and then coasted their way past Texas to Panuco.

Billings, Mrs. Mary C. Preacher at Hico. Emma Clermont. 12mo.

— The Wonderful Christmas Tree. 12mo. Mrs. Taylor's The Women Writers of Texas.

Pastor and missionary, Mrs. B. yet finds time for literary pursuits.

—— Geological Examination in Texas. Am. Nat., Vol. xiv., pp. 684-86, Sept., 1880.

Bonilla, Antonio, Teniente de Infanteria. Breve Compendio de los sucesos ocurridos en la Provincia de Texas, desde su conquista ò reduccion hasta la fecha. Mexico, 10 de Noviémbre de 1772. 52 leaves in folio.

One of the most valuable MSS. of the Eighteenth century in relation to Texas. It was not written on the spot, however, from personal observation, but carefully compiled from the official documents in the City of Mexico. MS. in A. & M. College, purchased for the College by Pres. John G. James at the booksale of Ramirez collection, London, 1880.

Bonnell, Geo. W. Topographical Description of Texas; to which is added an account of the Indian tribes. 150 pp., 12mo. Austin, 1840.

Quite valuable once. The author was one of the first settlers of the Capital City, and gave his name to a mountain peak in the vicinity.

Bonnycastle, Capt. R. H., Royal Engineers. Spanish America. 482 pp., 8vo. Philadelphia, 1819. Map.

Texas was then included in the Intendancy of San Luis Potosi. "San Antonio de Bejar is the capital of Texas, between the two rivers Nogales and St. Antonio. The most eastern fort . . . is the Presidio of Nacogdoch. . . . The rivers of the most note are . . . the Rio Mexicano, Rio de Sabina, Rio de la Trinidad, Rio Colorado, Rio St. Antonio, Rio de las Nueces.

Britton, Frank L., Adj. Gen. and Chief of State Police. Report for 1872. 235 pp., 8vo. Austin, 1873.

There were reported 6820 arrests made during the years 1870-'71-'72, of which there were 3731 arrested for miscellaneous offences, presumably political. At this time the State police numbered 5 captains, 6 lieutenants, 12 sergeants, 143 privates—a body made up from one political party, mainly out of the dregs of the population, white and black, with a tendency to commit, rather than to suppress, crime. An attempted revival of "Kirke's Lambs."

Bromme, Traugott. Die Verfassungen der Vereinigten Staaten von Nord-Amerika der Freistaaten Pennsylvania und Texas, der Koenigreiche Belgien und Norwegen, etc. 178 pp., 8vo. Stuttgart, 1848.

A book of the constitutions of the free States of Pennsylvania and Texas and of the kingdoms of Belgium and Norway, et al., to answer the question "Whether republic or constitutional monarchy?" The product of the revolutionary excitement of that period in Europe.

Brown, A. G. The Serfdom of the American Negro. 88 pp., 12mo. Washington, D. C., 1888. Portrait.

Written currente calamo. The Negro author was a school teacher in Lavaca county.

Brown, Jno. Henry, Revising Editor, Speer, Wm. S., Managing Editor. Encyclopedia of the New West. Texas, Arkansas, Colorado, New Mexico, and Indian Territory; also biographical sketches of their representative men and women. Illustrated. 1007 pp., 4to, of which 611 are devoted to Texas. Marshall, 1881.

Begins with fine sketches of Austin and Houston. A valuable book of biographical reference.

— History of Dallas county, 1837–1887. 114 pp., 16mo. Dallas, 1887.

With special reference to the pioneer settlers.

— Life and Times of Henry Smith, the first American Governor of Texas. Portrait. 395 pp., 8vo. Dallas, 1887.

The book covers a critical period of Texan history, a period of dissension and disaster. The Governor and the Council effectually checkmated each other. The offensive movement on Matamoras was broken up, and no line of defense provided against the impending invasion. And Santa Anna found Texas in practical anarchy, without any preparation for defense. The author, however, gives but one side of the case.

— History of Texas from 1685 to 1892. 2 vols. 8vo. Portrait and illustrations. St. Louis, 1892.

Special treatment of American colonization and Indian wars, with much new matter. The author was one of the old pioneers of Texas, and personally acquainted with nearly all the great men of the Republic.

Brown, Mrs. Mary M. (Dallas). A School History of Texas, from Its Discovery in 1685 to 1893. For the use of Schools, Academies, Convents, Seminaries, and all Institutions of Learning. 318 pp., 12mo. Port. of Houston. Dallas, 1894.

Good, but needs revision and expurgation of errors.

Patriotic and historical.

Mr. Bryan, nephew to Stephen F. Austin, came to Texas in 1831. Member Texas Legislature 1847-1857. U. S. Congress 1857-1859. On Kirby Smith's staff, 1863-1865. Speaker House of Representatives Texas Legislature, 1874, and member of Sixteenth and Twentieth Legislatures. See MSS.

Bryant, W. N. Galveston's beginning in 1836. Origin of name. Pioneers. Ships and engagements of the Texan navy. Gal. News, 1892.

"In the year 1839," says the author, "the Republic received from Frederick Dawson, contractor at Baltimore, the schooners San Jacinto, San Antonio, San Bernard, and the brig Colorado, and at the close of the same year the sloop of war Austin was added. These, with the Invincible, the Brutus, the Tom Toby and the Flash, constituted the gallant little navy of the Republic of Texas, whose exploits and achievements under Commodore Edwin Moore and his brave companions in arms, sheds an undying refulgence upon the pages of the story how our heritage was won." The author is brother to Midshipman A. J. Bryant, killed in the naval battle off Campeachy, April 3, 1843.

Bustamente, Carlos M. Relacion de la Gloriosa Campaña del Coronel D. Bernardo Gutierrez de Lara. In Campanas del Gl. F. M. Calleja. 8vo. Mexico, 1828.

Compiled from Gutierrez's Manifesto. Published in Monterey, 1827, and it may be considered in substance as Gutierrez's report of his Texan campaigns in 1812-1813. While American writers generally name Gutierrez as commander, in a sneering way, Gutierrez himself does not name at all any American officers. The conduct of these campaigns stamp Gutierrez as an able general.

What Oviedo published purported to be the substance of the above mentioned letter, which is not known to be in existence now. As it related to that part of Spanish Florida subsequently called Texas, this letter marks the beginning of Texan history.

— La relacion que dio Aluar nuñez cabeça de vaca de lo acaescido en las Indias en la armada donde yua por gouernador Páphilo de narbáez, desde el año de veynte y siete hasta el año de treynta y seys que boluio a Seuilla con tres de su compañía.

Fue impresso el presente tratado en la magnifica, noble, y antiquissima ciudad de Zamora: por los honrrados varones Augustin de paz y Juan Picardo compañeros impressores de libros vezinos de la dicha ciudad. A costa y espensas del virtuoso varon Juan pedro musetti mercader de libros vezino de Medina del campo. Acabose en seys dias del mes de Octubre. Año del nascimiento de nro Saluador Jesu Cristo de mil y quinientos y quarenta y dos Años. 67 leaves, 8vo. Zamora, 1542.

The above is the exact title and colophon of the first edition of Cabeza's Relacion.

This narrative of the Narvaez Expedition and its shipwreck on the Texan coast makes the first published book relating to Texas. A wonderful story, but not incredible. In fact, Cabeza's Relacion bears the earmarks of truth throughout.

— Next edition published in connection with a work written by Pedro Fernandez relating to Cabeza de Vaca and entitled "La relacion y comentarios del gouernador Aluar nuñez cabeza de vaca, de lo acaescido en las dos jornadas que hizo a las Indias. Valladolid, 1555.

The commentaries give the story of Cabeza's adventures in South America. Both works in Vol. i. Barcia's Historiadores Primitivos de las Indias Occidentales. Madrid, 1749, the first, styled in that work:

— Relacion de los naufragios del gouernador Alvar Nunez Cabeza de Baca. The second: Comentarios del mismo de lo sucedido durante su gobierno del Rio de la Plata.

Ardoino's "Exámen apologético historico," etc., is also in this volume of Barcia.

— An Italian translation of the first edition in Ramusio Collection. Navig., iii; 310-30. Venice, 1554-6-9.

— The only French version is that of Ternaux-Compans from second edition, entitled: "Relation et Naufrages de Cabeza de Vaca et Commentaires." Paris, 1837. Serie 1, tom. vii.

The Relation itself is an octavo of 302 pp. in good idiomatic French.

— An English translation or paraphrase in the Purchas Collection, vol. xviii.

— The best literal English translation is that of Buckingham Smith, entitled, "The Narrative of Alvar Nuñez Cabeça de Vaca." 123 pp. large 4to, 15 pp. notes and 8 maps. Washington, 1851.

Only 100 copies printed, and at expense of G. W. Riggs; not for sale, but for presentation to societies and personal friends. A copy in State Library which cost $35 in 1893.

The translator's theory was that the Narvaez Expedition was wrecked near Mobile bay, and that Cabeça and his companions thence made their way across the continent to New Spain. The Mississippi river was a stumbling block to this theory, and later it seems to have been dropped.

— Another edition, styled "Relation of Alvar Nuñez Cabeça de Vaca," translated from the Spanish. 206 pp. large 8vo. 11 pp. prel. Appendix, 207-263 pp. Index, 265-300 pp.

Portraits of the Franciscans, Fray Juan Xuarez and Fray Juan de Palos. Introduction by H. C. Murphy. In appendix are included Thos. W. Fields' Sketch of Cabeça de Vaca and John G. Shea's Memoir of Thos. Buckingham Smith, who died soon after his work went to press.

This last edition is much the better work, embodying, as it does, the translator's matured judgment on all the phases of the Narvaez Expedition. In this, Smith seems inclined to believe that the Texan coast was the locality of the shipwreck.

— Diplomatic correspondence on Texas. Am. State Papers, Foreign Relations.

— Speech on Mexican war. U. S. Senate, Feb. 9, 1847.

"I hold this war [said he] to have been a departure from our true line of policy, and therefore deeply to be deplored." Argued that the war having begun should be continued on a defensive line—the Rio Grande and the 32d parallel—till the Mexicans should be willing to treat for peace. Deprecated the acquisition of territory, which would be a source of contention between the North and the South, and dangerous to the stability of the Union.

Barring a little stiffness in the excellent introduction, the work is of a really high order throughout. The selections are among the choicest products of Lanier's art, and admirably illustrative of the range and power of his genius. The first breathed a spirit of resolute defiance. "Over the River" was written during the death agony of Hood's last campaign, being suggested by the efforts of the Confederate government to mass all its troops east of the Mississippi river for the decisive struggle. A creditable poem. Mr. C. was a distinguished preacher and editor, with a talent for poetry.

Caro, Ramon Martinez. Verdadera Idea de la Primera Campaña de Tejas y Sucesos, ocurridos despues de la Accion de San Jacinto. 162 pp., 8vo. Mexico, 1837.

The author was Santa Anna's private secretary. A very rare book. It contains Santa Anna's Official Report to the Secretary of War and Marine, of the Campaign of San Jacinto, never published entire in English, and many other interesting documents relating to Texas. Santa Anna puts his own force in the battle of San Jacinto at 1150 men and one cannon, and estimates Houston's army at 800 men, with two four-pounder cannon.

Carroll, B. H. (Miss., 1843-), D. D., Pastor Baptist Church in Waco. Book of Sermons. 12mo. With life sketch of, by J. B. Cranfill. Published by American Baptist Publication Society. Phila., 1895.

A good book, with the preacher's best thoughts on many subjects. As leader of the Prohibition movement of 1837 in Texas, Dr. C. had tilts with Congressman Mills, Senator Coke, and others. Among his published addresses are: The Orator, The Philosophy of Composition, The Mirror, S. S. Prentiss, Papal Fields, and Mission Work in Texas. This now eminent divine came to Texas in 1858, was converted in 1865, and became in 1870 pastor of the First Baptist Church in Waco, which position he still holds.

Castañeda de Nagera, Pédro de. Relation du voyage de Cibola (Sonora-Californie) entrepris en 1540, ou l'on traite de toutes les peuplades qui habitent cette contrée, de leurs mœurs et coutumes. Paris, 1838, in-8, br., xvi-392 pp.

Castañeda wrote his "Narrative of the Expedition to Cibola" at Cullacan after his return. The author was, perhaps, but a private soldier in the expedition, but not without some literary ability. The original has never been published (1895). This is a French translation of the MS., a quarto of 157 leaves, taken from Uguina's collection. Before this publication Coronado's expedition was made known to the world only through the short narratives published by Ramusio (in appendix of this volume), and slight notices by Herrera, Venegas and Gomara. See preface of the French editor.

An interesting and somewhat systematic presentation of the subject under three heads:

"I. The army and outgoing expedition.

II. The description of the country seen, with the manners and customs of the inhabitants.

III. The return march, and the reasons for it."

The dates, however, are frequently wrong, being one year ahead generally, as 1541 for 1540, etc.

Reference is made to Cabeza de Vaca and his traveling companions.

Included in this volume are also:

"I. Instruction . . . au Pere Marcos de Niza.

II. Relation de Frère Marcos de Niza.

III. Lettres de Don Antonio de Mendoza a l'Empereur Charles V.

IV. Relation . . . faite par le Capitaine Fernando Alarcon.

V. Lettres de Vasquez Coronado a Don Antoine de Mendoza et a l'Empereur Charles V."

These letters of the Viceroy and of Coronado have a historical value.

VI. Relation du Voyage fait a la Nouvelle Terre. Redigee par le Capitaine Jaramillo.

This is an independent account, noticed elsewhere.

Coronado's expedition, of which this is the best account, passed through the Texas Panhandle.

Castaño de Sosa, Gaspar. Memoria del Descubrimiento que Gaspar Castaño de Sosa, teniente de Gobernador y Capitan General del Nuevo Reino de Leon por el Rey D. C.'s publications were to induce emigration to his colony in Medina county. Under his auspices 485 families and 457 single men settled in Western Texas. And he was the founder of Castroville, Quihi, etc. Castro was one of Napoleon's old soldiers, and later partner of the banker Lafitte and Consul-General of Texas at Paris.

A reprint of Catlin's larger work. "A unique work, a book of extraordinary interest and value." Lon. Atheneum. This "Historian of the Red Race" resided in the various Indian tribes from 1832 to 1840, and closely studied their nature. Attended Lt. Wheelock's expedition from Ft. Washita to the Pawnee village on Red river, now called North Fork.

Reply to circular informing the governors of the several States that under an "Act to raise provisional forces," etc., the President of the Confederate States "assumes control of all military operations in your State having reference to, or connected with, questions between your State and powers foreign to it." Signed, E. W. Cave, Secretary of State. Rebellion Records, Vol. i, chap. vii, p. 611.

Secretary Cave, under the instructions of Governor Houston, in substance denies the authority of the State Convention to annex Texas to the Confederate States, and says Texas will maintain her independent attitude until the people determine otherwise.

Principally devoted to descriptions of Indian tribes.

Cavo, Pédro Andres. Los Tres Siglos de Mejico durante el Gobierno Español hasta la entrada del Ejercito Trigarante. Publicada con notas y suplemente por C. M. Bustamento. 4 vols. Mexico, 1836-38.

The original work was written in Rome, comprising two volumes, and closing with the year 1767. Bustamento added the notes and supplement of two volumes, filling the gap between 1767 and 1821. An annual chronicle of events in New Spain, including an account of the Presidios and Missions of Texas. Rare and important contribution to Mexican history.

Champigny, Chevalier de. Memoir of the present State of Louisiana.

This is a translation from the French, found in Historical Collections of Louisiana, Part Fifth. These were the first men in America to raise the standard of a republic.

Channing, Wm. E. (1780-1842). Letters to Henry Clay, opposing annexation of Texas. Boston, 1837.

Extract: "This [the annexation of Texas] can not, ought not, to be borne. It will justify, it will at length demand, the separation of the States. To me it seems not only the right but the duty of the free States in case of annexation of Texas, to say to the slave holding states, We record this act as a dissolution of the Union. The essential conditions of the national compact are violated."

The mental equipoise of the great moralist was habitually disturbed by his abhorrence of slavery. The letter was translated into Spanish immediately and circulated in Mexico.

— Strictures on Letter of, by a Friend of Texas. Pam. 30 pp., 8vo. Hoboken, N. J., 1837. Motto: "We are not to judge of men by their gush, or the sanctity of their appearance."

This splendid work comprises an account of French colonization in Texas. The author, a Jesuit, does but scant justice to the Franciscans.

Chittenden, Wm. Lawrence. Ranch verses. 189 pp., 12mo. Illustrated. New York and London, 1893.

"The verses in this little volume," says the author, "are offsprings of solitude, born on a Texas ranch."

Sprightly verses, with a few real gems. This places Mr. C. unquestionably among the best Texan poets. "Remember the Alamo" is a poem, which any Texan might be proud to have written. One poem is addressed to Gen. R. M. Gano, this writer's old commander, and one of John Morgan's brigadiers.

— Du Texas. Premier Rapport à Mes Amis. 80 pp., 8vo. Paris, 1857.

First report from Texas to friends, dated San Antonio, Aug. 8, 1857. A doleful story of failure in Dallas county, with new plans for trial in the southwest, where stock did well with but little attention and irrigation made agriculture sure. Notwithstanding the advantages of a tolerant government, and favorable physical conditions, Fourierism failed to take root in Texas.

Corner, Wm. (Eng., 1858-). Tex. 1883. Compiler and Editor. San Antonio de Bexar. A Guide and History. 166 pp., 8vo. San Antonio, 1890.

A mass of authentic information from various sources, so arranged as to make "A Guide and History" the best which has yet appeared relative to San Antonio. It includes an historical sketch by Sidney Lanier in his happiest style. Special merit in the treatment of the Old Missions, the illustrations of which are quite artistic. The maps and ground plans of old San Antonio, the Alamo, and the four missions were especially made for this work, and constitute the only permanent record of the original lines of this interesting town and its mission establishments.

Coxe, Daniel. A Description of the English Province of Carolana, by the Spaniards called Florida and by the French La Louisiane; as also of the great and famous river Meschacebe or Mississippi. . . . With an account of the commodities of the province and considerations of the consequences of the French making settlements there. 1722-27-41. 8vo., 2d edition. Map. 8 vo. London, 1726.

Though Coxe had a private interest in Carolana, inherited from his father, he certainly did not exaggerate the importance of the country. Carolana extended from the Atlantic to New Mexico, between latitudes 30 and 36, embracing nearly all of Texas. A quaint old record, still interesting. Preface and appendix lacking as published in French's Hist. Col. La.

Crane, Wm. Carey. (Va., 1816-1885). D. D., LL. D. Life and Select Literary Remains of Sam Houston. Two vols. in one. 672 pp., 8vo. Phila., 1884.

The first volume, or the Life proper, is on the basis of Lester's Life of Houston (which see), but more moderate in expression and more just to the Texans, with the addition of new matter. The closing chapters on Houston's domestic and religious life are quite interesting. Houston himself appears in the second volume in: State Papers, Indian Talks, Letters and Documents, Published Speeches, and Last State Papers as Governor of Texas.

Both sarcasm and political sagacity.

— Sketches and Eccentricities of. 48 pp., 8vo. London, 1836.

— Colonel Crockett's Exploits and Adventures in Texas; wherein is contained a full account of his journey from Tennessee to the Red River and Natchitoches, and thence across Texas to San Antonio, including his many hair-breadth escapes, together with a Topographical, Historical, and Political View of Texas. Original edition, 216 pp., 12mo. Phila., 1836. 152 pp., 12mo. London, 1837.

By C. himself.

“Say, what can politicians do,
When things run riot, plague and vex us?
But shoulder flork and start anew,
Cut stick and GO AHEAD in Texas!”

The narrative brought down from the death of Col. Crockett (at the Alamo) to the battle of San Jacinto, by an eye-witness.

The genuineness of this narrative has been doubted. But the discovery of the MS. in the baggage of the killed Mexican general, Castrillon, at close of the battle of San Jacinto was made known soon afterwards, and published in June, 1836, only a few weeks subsequent to the battle. There is no lack of internal evidence in its behalf.

— Leisure Hour Musings in Rhyme. Stirling, 1872. 12 mo. Privately printed.

Crockett as rhymester.

Col. C. was a fair type of the western American. Nowhere is his nobility of character more apparent than in his opposition to the imperious Jackson, under the penalty of almost certain political ruin. He died the noblest of deaths, fighting for liberty. His remains mingle with the ashes of the Alamo dead, and his name is indelibly written among the martyrs of Texan independence.

— An English translation in three volumes, entitled "Travels Round the World, 1767-76." London, 1791.

The distinguished traveler was a captain in the French Navy, member of the Academy of Sciences, etc., Paris. He passed through Texas on horseback, with several companions, in 1767, from Natchitoches, La., via Nacogdoches and San Antonio de Bexar, to the Rio Grande. The observations of the author on the manners and customs of the people are instructive and sometimes amusing. The Missions, then on the decline, are thus described, with their peculiar methods of converting the heathen:

"Four Missions, consisting of a couple of Franciscans each. In the houses of these missionaries, savages who have been taken in war, and on whom the fathers have conferred marriage and baptism, receive their maintenance and education. . . . Each house contains seven or eight men, with their wives and children, who are employed under the direction of these monks in certain articles of industry, the profits of which are applied to the emolument of the Mission."

In recruiting from the savages "they use the thong, and lace them like wild horses. As soon as a savage has been caught, he is bound hand and foot and carried to the residence of a missionary, who makes it his business, by threats, persuasion, severe fasting, gentleness, last of all by marriage, to tame and civilize the manners of his prisoner. Having been instructed in the existence of a Supreme Being, providence, and the more peculiar doctrines of Christianity, he is admitted to the privilege of baptism."

De Shields, J. T. (La., 1861-). Cynthia Ann Parker; the story of her capture at the massacre . . . in Parker's Fort. 80 pp., 16mo. St. Louis, 1883. Illustrations.

A story of painful but absorbing interest.

— Frontier Sketches. 80 pp., 12mo. St. Louis, 1883.

Illustrative of border life in Texas as it then existed.

Dignowity, Anthony. Bohemia under Austrian Despotism. Being an autobiography. 236 pp., 12mo. New York, 1859.

Dr. Dignowity, a resident of San Antonio, claims to have barely escaped the honors of martyrdom for truth and right, but consoles himself with the thought that this was at a time of "belief in an eternal hell, and in a personal devil." During the Civil War this almost martyr petitioned the U. S. Congress for protection as a loyal citizen.

|                                      |                      |
|--------------------------------------|----------------------|
| Original area .....                  | 371,063 square miles |
| Texas cession to U. S. in 1850 ..... | 96,707 square miles  |
| Remaining area .....                 | 274,356 square miles |

Of this cession, now are found in southwest corner of Kansas, 7706 square miles; in southeast corner Colorado, 18,000 square miles; in eastern New Mexico, 65,201 square miles; in Public Land Strip, 5740 square miles. At a cost to United States of $16,000,000, as follows (see pp. 134-36): Principal sum, 5 per cent 14-year bonds, $5,000,000; interest to date of redemption, $3,500,000; act of February 28, 1855, $7,500,000.

A more accurate survey makes the present area of Texas 265,780 square miles.

— An English translation, under the author's superintendence, styled "Missionary Adventures in Texas and Mexico. A Personal Narrative in those Regions." London, 1858.

The Appendix (left out of the translation) has several important letters from Bishops Timon and Odin and Fathers Hennessey and Dubois on missionary prospects in Texas from a Catholic point of view. Also, Bishop Odin's interesting allusion to the ownership of the Catholic Missions in Texas. The author is somewhat inclined to exaggerate, and his statements are not always accurate.

— Voyage Pittoresque dans les Grande Deserts du Nouveau Monde. 608 pp., 4to. Paris, 1860. Illust.

Purports to be a scientific treatise on the Indians in the wilds of the new world; their origin, manners, customs, religion, etc., with a physical description of those regions, and based on personal observation. But no narrative of personal observation in fact, which rather discredits the seven years residence. List of Indian tribes, with some vocabularies of some of their languages. Physical description of northwestern Texas, perhaps from Marcy.

— An English edition, entitled "Seven Years Residence in the Great Deserts of North America, by the Abbé Em. Domenech, Apostolical Missionary. Illustrated with fifty-eight woodcuts by A. Joliet, three plates of Indian music, and a map showing the actual situation of the Indian tribes and the country described by the author." In two vols. London, 1860.

Dorsey, Sarah A. (Miss., 1829-79). Recollections of Henry Watkins Allen, Brigadier-General C. S. Army and Ex-Governor of Louisiana. — pp., 12mo. New York, 1866.

A well told story of a true patriot, and a fine war history of the Trans-Mississippi Department. Texas has a claim on H. W. Allen as one of her soldiers in the War of Independence. The author bequeathed her estate at Beauvoir to Jeff. Davis.

Favoring a vigorous prosecution of the war, on the broad ground that a patriot should stand by his country, right or wrong. Some nice points of our history brought out by Mr. D. in replying to the interruptions of Ex-President Adams, on the Mexican side of the question. Mr. A. was finally made an unwilling witness to prove, by his statements in the diplomatic correspondence with De Onis, that French Louisiana extended to the Rio del Norte.

The author remarks in conclusion: "In this brief review it has been impracticable to touch upon all that is of interest or importance in connection with the soils. Their physical condition, power of water absorption, percentage of humus, details of plant growth, and other particulars have had to be passed over almost without notice, but it is hoped that the presentation made will prove a start in the right direction and be followed by closer studies of the various soils of the State and a combined effort for such an understanding of our agricultural capabilities as will result in the rapid improvement of everything connected with the farming interests, which can be effected by agricultural geology or agricultural chemistry.

A geographical description, natural history, with an account of the natives, their origin, manners, customs, religion, etc. The author was a resident in Louisiana for fifteen years, and therefore had abundant opportunities for observation and research. The English translation, with its additional matter, is somewhat the better book.

This resident observer has given a good description of Louisiana and Western Florida, which then extended to the Mississippi. The boundary between Louisiana and Texas was not then well defined. This was the year in which the dominion of this region passed to the United States, and of course it marks the beginning of its American history.

One of the few choice early histories of Texas, though the author was rather Mexican in his politics. Among the rare public documents inserted, are the proposed constitution of Texas drawn up in the conventions of 1832-33, and the Mexican constitution of 1824. But one book with three different titles. Ehrenberg was one of Fannin's soldiers who ran the gauntlet of the massacre and escaped to tell the story of Mexican perfidy and cruelty. Came to Texas in 1835 with the New Orleans Grays. Having sent to Germany for publication his MS. of "Texas und seine Revolution," he went off to California in 1843. Was killed in 1870 by Indians in that state, a short distance from the town of Ehrenberg he had founded in Arizona. Ehrenberg's book is a creditable contribution to that period of Texan literature, and trustworthy generally in its statements. Never translated into English.

This, Espejo's own story of his expedition to New Mexico with fourteen soldiers and a Franciscan friar, was written the next year after his return. The route was up the Rio Grande, on the Texan side, and back down the Pecos. The country was called New Andalucia. Spanish occupation followed during the next decade.

A careful perusal of these letters will indicate the difficulties of Fannin's position and how he nobly met them. Fannin, trained at West Point, was an accomplished soldier.

Fannin received Houston's order to fall back on Victoria, March 15, and proceeded at once to obey by collecting his scattered troops. On the retreat Fannin was attacked by a superior number of Mexicans, and after a gallant fight compelled to surrender his army as prisoners of war. In a few days followed the inhuman massacre which excited the horror of the civilized world. It is to Fannin's credit that he delayed his retreat awhile to save Ward and his men at Refugio. And this was not contrary to the spirit of Houston's order. If it be said that he dawdled on the retreat, even when begun, that may be admitted; but some allowance should be made to a man who had led a military force 1000 miles to the defense of Texas, who had won the first pitched battle, and who was only slow in learning to show his back to a barbarous enemy.

Featherstonhaugh, G. W. Tour through the Slave States, from the River Potomac, by Baltimore, in Maryland, to Texas and the Frontiers of Mexico. Map and illustrations. 2 vols., 8vo. 1844.

A scientific traveler, not without political convictions, the author says: While in "the little wooden village of Washington," Ark., "General Houston was here, leading a mysterious sort of a life, shut up in a small tavern, seeing nobody by day and sitting up all night. The world gave him credit for passing his waking hours in the study of trente et quarante and sept à lever, but I had been in communication with too many persons of late, and had seen too much passing before my eyes to be ignorant that the little place was the rendezvous where a much deeper game than faro or rouge et noir was being played. There were many persons at the time in the village from the States lying adjacent to the Mississippi, under the pretense of purchasing government lands, but whose real object was to encourage the settlers in Texas to throw off their allegiance to the Mexican government."

Who the Fidalgo Deluas was is not yet known, though supposed by some to have been Alvaro Fernandez, one of De Soto's soldiers. A rather confused narrative of the De Soto expedition, from which it is hard to get a definite idea of the route. After the death of De Soto at mouth of Red River, May, 1542, Muscoco attempted with his army to reach New Spain by a march overland through the present territory of Texas. After going 150 leagues westward to the Daycao river, on the border of the deserts, the Spaniards saw nothing but starvation ahead, and returned to the Mississippi. This river was perhaps the Colorado, or possibly the Pecos. Cabega de Vaca was frequently referred to by the bewildered Spaniards. An account of the descent of the Mississippi and coasting along the Texan shores included, with details.

Lisbon, 1605.

The most readable of the original narratives of the De Soto expedition, and written about 40 years afterwards, from statements of survivors and documents extant. From De Soto's burial place on the Mississippi, this writer traces the expedition westward to the region where provisions failed, perhaps on the high plains of western Texas, and thence back to the Mississippi, and down that stream in some rude caravels, fighting their way through hostile Indians to the sea. After a little rest, the Spaniards, turning their prows westward, skirted along the northern and western gulf shores, landing and resting occasionally on the coast of present Texas. This narrative, considered a romance by some and highly admired by others, is clear and precise in statement, and more satisfactory than any other extant. No translation proper into English.

Official correspondence on the passage of the Sabine by Gen. Gaines, published by Gorostiza, then Mexican Minister at Washington. Gen. G. acted under the treaty between Mexico and the U. S. to prevent Indian depredations on either side of the boundary line. Mexico, after her jurisdiction ceased in Texas, was anxious for Indian depredations on the Texans. But the United States stood by the treaty.

Potter was an Indian fighter, race rider, common soldier in the U. S. army, chaplain in C. S. army, and circuit rider on the Texan frontier at a time when it required courage and judgment.

Gravier, Gabriel. Membre de la Societe de l' Histoire de Normandie. Decouvertes et Etablissements de Cavelier de la Salle de Rouen Dans l' Amerique du Nord. 411 pp., 8vo. Maps and plates. Paris, 1870.

A book of great merit, which includes an authentic narrative of La Salle's work in Texas.

— Cavelier de la Salle de Rouen. 123 pp., 8vo. Paris, 1880.

An excellent treatise, and dedicated to Dr. Parkman, in terms quite complimentary, but well merited.

Gray, Asa. M. D. (N. Y., 1810-88). Plantæ Wrightianæ Texano-Neo-Mexicanæ. Part I. 10 plates, 4to, 146 pp. Washington, 1852.

— Plantæ Wrightianæ Texano-Neo-Mexicanæ. Part II. An account of a collection of plants made by Chas. Wright in Western Texas, New Mexico, and Sonora in the years 1851-52. 4 plates, 4to, 120 pp. Washington, 1853.

The collector, Chas. Wright, was for several years a citizen of the Republic of Texas, being a professor in Rutersville College, now defunct.

Gray, A. B. Survey of a route for the Southern Pacific Railroad on 32d parallel, for the Texan Western Railroad Company. 110 pp., 8vo. Numerous wood cuts. Cinti., 1856.

A fine physical description of the country traversed.

Gray, A. C. Index to Texas Constitution of 1876. Austin, 1877.

—— Historical Sketch of Texas Newspapers. Scarff Yoakum's History of Texas. In press.

The most complete that has yet appeared, with explanatory notes and remarks, and published in part in this book by permission of the author.

This veteran journalist was connected, first to last, with the following newspapers: The Western Texan, San Antonio, 1849-50; the Beacon, Houston, 1851-53; the Argus, Hickman, Ky., 1856-59; the Eagle and Enquirer, Memphis, Tenn. (as editor), 1859-60; the Family Visitor, Houston, 1870; the Masonic Mirror, Houston, 1871-73; the Houston Telegraph, Houston, 1874-77; the Telegram, Houston, 1877-80.

Gray, J. Deep Water at Sabine Pass. Its importance to the country and commerce. Pam. 17 pp., 8vo. 1884.

Greeley, Horace (1811-12). Letters from Texas. To which are added his Address to the Farmers of Texas, and his speech on his return to New York, June 12, 1871. 56 pp. New York, 1871.

The great philanthropist had a hearty greeting in Texas, which he seems to have appreciated.

Green, Thos. J. (N. C., -1864). Journal of the Texian Expedition against Mier. Subsequent imprisonment of the author, his sufferings, and final escape from the Castle of Perote; with reflections upon the present political and probable future relations of Texas, Mexico, and the United States. Illustrated by drawings taken from life by Charles McLaughlin, a fellow prisoner. 487 pp., 8vo. New York, 1845.

One of the best war histories of that period, and as fascinating as a romance, with incidents of soldier life on the march, in the battle, and in prison, and drawings from life by Charles McLaughlin, a fellow prisoner. Bitter towards President Houston, but gives the reasons, and the reader must judge for himself.

— Address to the People of Texas on the Mier Expedition. M. Star, Dec. 9, 12 and 14, 1843.

— Letter from Velasco (July 13, 1844) to Texian Democrat. Review of Sam Houston. M. Star, August 31, 1844.

— Reply to the speech of Gen. Sam Houston, delivered in U. S. Senate Aug. 1, 1854. (Cong. Globe). Pam. 67 pp., 8vo. Washington, 1854. See HOUSTON.

Green, T. M. The Spanish Conspiracy; a review of early Spanish movements in the Southwest, implicating Gen. Jos. Wilkinson, John Brown, — Sebastian, and others. 407 pp., 8vo. Cinti., 1891.

The Spanish policy was to separate the Western States from the Union.

Greenhow, Robert. Expedition of St. Denis through Texas to Mexico in 1714, and its result in the establishment of the Spaniards in the territory between the Rio Bravo and the Red River. De Bow's Re., Oct., 1846.

Thus was Texas given up to the Spaniards, who held the territory continuously afterwards.

Greenleef, A. B. Ten Years in Texas. 131 pp., 8vo. Pap. Selma, Ala., 1883.

Gregg, Josiah. Commerce of the Prairies; or the Journal of a Santa Fe Trader during Eight Expeditions across the Great Western Prairies and a Residence of nearly Nine Years in Northern Mexico. Illust. with maps and engs. 2 vols., 8vo, pp. 318 and 320. N. Y., 1844. A second edition, Phila., 1849.

An accepted authority on this subject, with incidental allusions to the Texans, and the Santa Fe and Snively Expeditions.

— A German edition, at Dresden and Leipzig, 1845, styled "Gregg, Josias. Karavanenzüge durch die Westlichen Prairien und Wanderungen en Nord-Mexico."

Greer County Case. Pending in the Supreme Court of the U. S. The United States, complainant, v. The State of Texas. In equity. Bill filed Oct. 27, 1890. Record, Vol. i, 712 pp.; Vol. ii, 680 pp. Washington, 1894.

The Record contains briefs and agreements of counsel, besides a mass of evidence in print and manuscript, generally noted at proper places in this volume. The ownership of Greer county is the question in dispute, each party claiming under the treaty of 1819-21 between Spain and the United States, Texas standing on the right of Spain. Texas is now represented by her Attorney General, M. M. Crane. This matter was first a subject of arbitration, but the joint commissioners failing to agree, it was transferred for settlement to the decision of the U. S. Supreme Court. See SWISHER.

Gregg, Right Rev. Alexander. (S. C., 1819-93). D. D., LL. D., Bishop Diocese of Texas. The Duties Growing out of it, and the Benefits to be Expected from the Present War. A sermon preached at St. David's church, Austin, July 7, 1861.

Published by request of C. S. West, A. W. Terrell, G. W. Sampson, Jno. A. Green, Gov. Ed. Clark, Lem R. Evans, F. T. Duffau, and many others not members of the Episcopal church. Christian and patriotic in spirit.

— A Full History of the Episcopal Church in Texas, dating from days of the Republic. In Church Encyclopedia, N. Y., 1885.

— The bound Journals of the Diocese of Texas from 1860 to 1890.

This also contains diary of the Bishop's travels and work during each year, and is of general interest as showing the various portions, stages and progress of Texas during that period, outside of church work.

— Eulogy on Judge Hemphill and Gen. McLeod, delivered in the capitol at Austin, Feb., 1862.

When their bodies came in from Virginia for interment at home. Published by request of Major Ireland, Judge West, and others, at Telegraph office, Houston, 1862.

H . . . (de l'Ain), L. F. Champ d'Asile. Tableau topographique et historique du Texas, contenant des détails sur le sol, le climat et les productions de cette contrée, des documens authentiques sur l'organisation de la Colonie des réfugiés français, des notices sur ses principaux fondateurs, des extraits de leurs proclamations et autres actes publics, suivi de lettres écrites par les colons à quelquesuns de leurs compatriotes par L. F. H . . . (de l'Ain), Paris, 1819; in-8, viii, 247 pp.

This is a description of Texas, "with details on the soil, climate, and productions, and authentic documents on the organization of the colony of French refugees, notices of the principal founders, extracts from their proclamations, and other public acts, closing with letters written by the colonists to some of their compatriots."

Champ d'Asile, or Camp Asylum, on the Trinity, settled by the exiled soldiers of the Grand Army in 1817, was the colony referred to. On the left bank of the river about twelve or fifteen miles from its mouth.

Harman et Millard. Le Texas, ou Notice historique sur le Champ d'Asile, comprenant tout ce qui s'est passé depuis la formation jusqu'à la dissolution de cette colonie, les causes qui l'ont amenée, et la liste de tous les colons français, avec des renseignements utiles à leurs familles, et le plan du camp. 842 pp., 8vo. Paris, 1819.

The authors give a full history of "Camp Asylum, with a notice of everything that happened from the formation to the dissolution of that colony, the causes which brought it about, and the list of all the French colonists, with information useful to their families, and the plan of the camp." The organization was purely military, divided into two cohorts, commanded by Gens. Lallemand and Rigaud. Lallemand was one of the legatees of Napoleon. On the approach of a Spanish army, the French burned their buildings and fled to Galveston island, and thence to Louisiana. The exact site of the settlement has not yet been determined.

Hogg, James Stephen. (1851-). Governor, 1891-95. Inaugural and Messages.

— Reports as Attorney General, 1888-90.

Son to Joseph L. Hogg, congressman in the Republic and later Confederate general. First native Texan to become Governor. An executive of marked individuality, leaving a greater impress upon our legislation than any of his predecessors. The measures he championed enacted into law, the chief of which being the State regulation of our railroads.

Hogg, Thos. E. (1842-80). The Fate of Marvin, and Other Poems. 274 pp., 12mo. Houston, 1872.

A creditable collection, of which "The Pen of Prentice" is perhaps the best. The edition was soon exhausted; out of print and rare. Elder brother to Ex-Gov. Hogg, and was a Confederate captain, and later a lawyer and judge.

Holcomb, Miss Lucy. The Free Flag of Cuba. 12mo. N. Y., 1854.

A tale of the military expedition from the United States to Cuba in 1851. Dedicated to Gen. Jno. A. Quitman, the reputed chief of the filibusters. The author married Gov. F. W. Pickens, of South Carolina, in 1857, and attended her husband upon a European mission.

The first history of Texas in English, in the form of charming letters written from Austin's Colony.

— Texas. 364 pp., and Appendix 46 pp., 12mo. Lexington, Ky., 1836.

"Texas" is an entirely new book, and not another edition of the "Letters." More history and less description. With Col. Austin's famous Louisville speech. The lady was Col. Austin's cousin, and had abundant facilities for information about Texas, and her books are reliable.

Hollingsworth, Jno. E. (1849-). Commr. Agriculture, Ins., Statist. and Hist. Agricultural and Insurance Reports. 1892-93-94.

Holst, Dr. H. von. (Ger., 1841-). Life of Jno. C. Calhoun. 352 pp., 12mo. Boston, 1885, 9th ed.

Barring a few inexcusable words derogatory to his honor, a fair analysis of the character of the great Southern statesman as the champion of slavery and as the advocate of the annexation of Texas, with a view of strengthening the institution.

— The Constitutional and Political History of the United States. Translated from the German by Jno. J. Lalor. 6 vols. 8vo., and 1 vol. index. 1879-92.

A former volume on the same subject, embracing the period 1750-1833, lately preceded this series, which begins in 1828 and ends in 1861. An elaborate work, but not so much a constitutional history as a history of the anti-slavery struggle in the United States till its triumph and Civil War in 1861. Not written in that dispassionate tone naturally expected of a philosophic foreigner. The treatment of Texas in volume 1 (1828-45) especially lacks judicial fairness. Still a good history, and worthy of study.

Hood, Gen. John B. (Ky., 1831-79). Advance and Retreat. Personal Experiences in the United States and Confederate Armies. — pp., 8vo. N. O., 1880. Edited by General Beauregard.

An excellent military history by the only Texan who attained the full rank of General in the C. S. Army. However well the author may have vindicated his generalship, it is still evident that a change of commanders at the crisis of the Atlanta campaign was a blunder.

Hooton, Chas. St. Louis' Isle, or Texiana; with additional observations made in the United States and in Canada, with a portrait and other illustrations. London, 1847. 8vo, 204 pp.

This dyspeptic Englishman is anti-American and anti-Republican throughout, and can see no good in Texas or her people. Yet the book is in places entertaining. The title is the French form of the old Spanish name for Galveston island.

Jefferson Green, Aug. 1, 1854. Personal Vindication, Feb. 28, 1859. Cong. Globe.

Very bitter against Moore and Green; saying as to Green's book, "The Journal of the Texan Mier Expedition," that there was but one truth in it, to-wit, that Stephen F. Austin was the "Father of Texas." The last speech is his farewell address in the Senate, really a review of his military career in Texas, with severe reflections on the Council, Col. Fannin, Gen. Sherman, and others.

— Presidential aspirations and canvass in 1860. Tex. Rep., June, July and August, 1860.

— Inaugural and messages as Governor of Texas, 1859-61. Journals Leg.

Gov. Houston did not oppose secession after its ratification by popular vote, but refused to recognize the union of Texas with the Confederacy, because the act was not ratified by vote of the people. (See CAVE.) Texas, nevertheless, joined the Confederacy, and the Governor, rather than take the prescribed oath to the Confederate constitution, vacated his office. The fatal step had been taken as to the United States, and this last contention was merely between the Lone Star and the Stars and Bars, whether Texas should stand alone or enter a new Union. In the ensuing war the old hero's sympathies were wholly with Texas, judging from his speeches at Independence, Galveston, etc., and his letter to Gen. Magruder in the year of his death.

—— Letter (Jan. 7, 1863) to Gen. Jno. B. Magruder, congratulating him on his victory and recapture of Galveston. Reb. Records, Vol. xv, chap. xvii.

—— Death at Huntsville, July 26, 1863. Tri-Weekly Telegraph, July 29, 1863.

In words of honorable mention and regret, closing with this brief analysis of his character: "It was not his virtue or generosity that made him great, but his knowledge of human nature and ability to touch the springs of human action."

—— Resolutions of regret and condolence in Legislature, Nov. 3, 1863. Crane's Life and Leg. Jour.

Of all the worthies of the Texan Republic, Gen. Houston is the only one who has found a biographer. And he has biographies many (noted herein), and all written in the strain of admiring friendship. Texas had grown strong enough to ask for admission as a separate state in Mexican union before Houston's arrival here. But his promotion was rapid, and since the battle of San Jacinto, the most prominent figure in Texan history. May be fairly called "The Apostle of Annexation."

Houston, Sam, Jr. (1843-94). Random Rustlings. A Collection of Original Sketches, Short Stories, and Poems. 84 pp., 12mo. Pap. Austin, 1892.

Gen. Houston's eldest son.

Houstoun, Mrs. M. C. Texas and the Gulf of Mexico; or Yatching in the New World. 12mo., pp. 288. (2 vols., 8vo. London, 1844.)

Mrs. H., wife of Capt. H., 10th Hussars, includes in this entertaining work a sketch of Texas, with allusions to Commodore Moore, President Houston, etc.

Hubbard, Richard B. (Ga., 1834-). Governor, 1876-78.

(Succeeded Gov. Coke, who was elected U. S. Senator in 1874.) Centennial Address at Philadelphia, Sept., 1876.

— The Political Apathy of the Times, the Menace of the Republic, and the Duties of the American Citizen in the Premises. Pam. Address before U. Va. Lit. Societies, June 30, 1880.

Gov. Hubbard has no superior, perhaps, as an orator in Texas.

Huddle, W. H. (Va., 1847-92). Art Painter. Sketch of. Daniel's Personnel, 1892.

Among his productions are portraits of the Presidents and of the Governors, hanging on the walls of the capitol, and life size portrait of Col. Crockett, and historical painting of Santa Anna before Houston, at south entrance to building. Also portrait of Madame Candelaria, the reputed survivor of the Alamo.

Hughes, Thos. Editor. G. T. T. (Gone to Texas). Letters from our boys. 228 pp., 12mo. London, 1884.

But one of "our boys" now survives—Wm. Hughes, an intelligent, well-to-do and well satisfied citizen of Texas, living near Boerne. The letters, in common colloquial English, descriptive of sheep ranch life in Texas.

The "Political Essay on the Kingdom of New Spain," the first authoritative work on the subject, and the basis of all later physical descriptions of Mexico. The Mermentau river (now in La.) then the east boundary of Texas.

Hunt, Memucan (N. C., —). The Campaign under Gen. A. Somervell and Col. Wm. S. Fisher. M. Star, Jan. 17, 1843.

Mr. Hunt returned with Gen. Somervell, but he gives apparently an impartial account of the expedition. Also rendered good service as Minister to the United States.

Hunter, John Dunn. Manners and Customs of Several Indian Tribes located West of the Mississippi. 402 pp., 8vo. Phila., 1823.

The original edition of the following work:

——— Memoirs of a Captivity among the (Kickapoo) Indians, to the Age of 19 Years, with Anecdotes of their Manners and Customs, and Account of the Land W. of the River. Portrait. 497 pp., 8vo. 1824.

Hunter was living among the Cherokees near Nacogdoches for several years before the Fredonian War. He induced the Indians to pledge their allegiance to Edwards in that war. Mexican emissaries had Hunter murdered, and the enterprise failed. Foote's Texas, Vol. II.

Hurley, Wm. C. (Tenn., 1829–76). The Philosophy of Man. 104 pp., 16mo. Illust. Gilmer, 1868.

A work on phrenology, treating of man, physically, intellectually, and morally, and teaching that character is determined by temperamental physiology, as manifested by cerebral development, giving shape to the head and face. Dr. Hurley was very successful as a delineator of character.

Hutchins, Jas. H. (N. C., 1813–). Poems. Miscellaneous.

——— A Dirge. Feb., 1862. On Cols. B. F. Terry and T. S. Lubbock, Judge Hemphill and Gen. H. McLeod, when their bodies arrived from Kentucky and Virginia for interment in the State Cemetery at Austin. Dixon's Poets.

A noble testimonial in verse to these heroic dead of Texas.

Designed for the use of the British merchant and as a guide to emigrants. 100 pp., 16mo. Map and cut of Alamo. London, 1841.

Author's Note.—"Texian or Texan. Contrary to the best British authorities, the orthography which designates the people of Texas Texians, instead of Texans, has been preferred in the following pages, not with any reference to the more correct derivation, nor to the euphony, but simply because the people and government of Texas, who are supposed to be the best judges in such a question, have irrevocably sanctioned the form of spelling by the wording of their public acts and treaties."

Exceptionally fine specimens of Southern literature. The Texan writers or speakers quoted are: Guy M. Bryan, D. G. Burnet, R. Coke, D. Culberson, Mrs. F. A. D. Darden, Mrs. M. E. M. Davis, A. J. Hamilton, Sam Houston, R. B. Hubbard, T. M. Jack, R. Josselyn, V. O. King, S. W. T. Lanham, R. Q. Mills, R. M. Potter, Ashbel Smith, A. W. Terrell, W. T. C. Weaver. President James purchased for the A. and M. College, at the sale of the Ramirez Collection, London, 1880, besides Bonilla's Breve Compendio, the MSS. of the Franciscan friars Manzanet and Francisco, perhaps the most ancient documents in existence on the Texan Missions. Col. J. has been for years an indefatigable collector of Texana.

A short narrative, with interesting incidents of the Coronado Expedition, which passed through the Texan Panhandle. Erroneous date of 1537.

An anonymous narrative of same subject, entitled, — Relacion del Suceso de la jornada que Francisco Vasquez de Coronado hizo en el Descubrimiento de Cibola. Col. Doc. Ined., xiv, 318-29, date 1531 for 1541; and Flor. Col. Doc., pp. 147-54.

And another entitled,

— Traslado de las nuevas y noticias que dieron sobre el Descubrimiento de Cibola. Flor. Col. Doc. Col. Doc. Ined., xix, 529. As before, 1531 for 1541.

These anonymous narratives, though not so valuable as Castañeda and Jaramillo on the Coronado Expedition, are not to be considered as of but little worth.

Johnson, Andrew. (N. C., 1808-75). President U. S. Texas and New Mexico Boundary. H. R., Aug. 12, 1850.

He maintained the right of Texas to the Rio Grande, saying also: "I am no advocate of disunion. . . . I am for the Union so long as it can be maintained without violation of the Constitution. . . . Persons may talk of breaking up the Union, but I yet believe it strong enough to resist all efforts to destroy it."

— Official Report of the capture of Bexar, Dec., 1835.

The hardest fought battle of the war, and decisive of Anglo-American superiority in valor.

— Fifty-one Years Reminiscences of Texas. Serial. Nos. —, Am. Sketch Book.

A manuscript history of Texas, not yet published; in possession of Judge A. W. Terrell, Minister to Turkey. Came to Texas in 1824. Surveyor General of Austin's Colony. Led one of the assaulting columns on Bexar, and on the fall of Milam, commanded the whole force of 300 Texans till Cos' surrender with 1105 Mexicans. Died in Mexico; body removed to Texas.

Johnston, Albert Sidney. (Ky., 1803-62). Secretary War Republic of Texas, 1838-40. Army Regulations Republic of Texas; as prescribed and published by order of the President (Lamar). 203 pp., 16mo. Houston, 1839.

— Official reports as Secretary of War.

That of 1839 includes the Cherokee campaign, which is the basis of every reliable history of that war. Gen. Johnston was present in the two principal battles. He commanded the Texan army a short time in 1837, under President Houston. Formerly lived in Texas, which he always claimed as his home.

Johnston, Wm. Preston. (Ky., 1831-). Pres. Tulane University. The Life of Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston; embracing his services in the Army of the United States, the Republic of Texas, and the Confederate States. Illustrations. 755 pp., 8vo. N. Y., 1879.

The life of one of the noblest characters that ever adorned Texan history, written by a scholarly son. The strong points of Lamar's administration clearly brought out by this master of English prose. And it is not a little to the credit of this book, that it is the only work yet published which contains a fair statement of President Lamar's official acts. Written in admirable temper, and well timed. Gen. Johnston's remains, returned to Texas after the war, now rest in the State Cemetery, where his monument is the chief attraction of patriotic visitors.

Johnston, Joseph E. (Va., 1809-). Lt. Col. U. S. A. Reconnoissances of routes from San Antonio to El Paso. By Brevet Lt. Col. J. E. Johnston, Lieutenant W. F. Smith, Lieutenant E. I. Bryan, Lieutenant N. H. Micheler, and Captain S. G. French of Quartermaster's Department. Also, the report of Captain R. B. Marcy's route from Fort Smith to Santa Fe; and the report of Lieutenant J. H. Simpson of an expedition into the Navajo country; and the report of Lieutenant W. H. C. Whiting's Reconnoissances of the Western Frontier of Texas, July 24, 1850. 8vo., 250 pp., and 71 plates. The feeling of France on these questions; Let Texas and Oregon belong to the United States since they can not belong to France.

Jones, Anson. (Mass., 1798-1858). President of the Republic of Texas. Inaugural and Messages.

— Valedictory address delivered on the gallery of the Old Capitol, Feb. 16, 1846.

Concluding, "The Republic of Texas is no more." An impressive scene, the demise of a nation, at which several old Texans present, with the glories of the Republic in mind, and apprehensive of the future, wept bitterly. Their vindication, time and events.

— Letters relating to the history of annexation. 30 pp. 12mo. Phila., 1852.

An authentic history of annexation, as viewed by the last President of the Republic. President Jones was suspected (though unjustly, doubtless) of opposing annexation, and this blasted ever after his political aspirations. Of good New England stock, and one of the purest of the public men of Texas.

— Memoranda and official correspondence relating to the Republic of Texas. Its history and vindication. Including a brief autobiography of Dr. Jones, and port. 648 pp., 8vo. N. Y., 1859.

By the aid of this book we can, as it were, read between the lines as to the varying policies of the Texan government. What is told from personal knowledge may be accepted as true, but our inferences on facts will necessarily differ.

Jones, W. J. The Cherokee War (1839).

Reminiscences by an officer who attended the expedition. A spirited account of a campaign, second in its results only to that of San Jacinto.

— An Incident of the Cherokee Troubles of 1839. Gal. News, Nov. 20, 1893.

Showing that Major Jones advanced $4500 to the government to equip the troops, and never was repaid.

— Sea Island Cotton. Tex. Al., 1869 and 1873.

Major Jones was a confidential friend to President Lamar, and in the State Library is a rough draft of Lamar's inaugural in Jones' handwriting.

Josselyn, Robert. (Mass., 1810-84). The Faded Flower and Other Poems. Boston, 1848.

— A Satire on the Times. A poem. 24 pp., 8vo. St. Louis, 1873.

Prof. Bledsoe first published this Satire in the Southern Review, Oct., 1871, with an acknowledgment of its merit.

— The Coquette. A drama, in five acts. Austin, 1878.

Among his fugitive poems are "The Girl with the Calico Dress," "The Young Widow," etc.

Once Private Secretary to the Confederate President, and later State Librarian of Texas. A man of strong convictions, and not without literary ability.

Joutel. Journal historique du dernier voyage que feu M. de La Salle fit dans le golfe de Mexique, pour trouver l'embouchure et le cours de la rivière de Saint-Louis, qui traverse la Louisiane. Où l'on voit l'histoire tragique de sa mort et plusieurs choses curieuses du Nouveau-Monde, par M. Joutel, l'un des compagnons de ce voyage, rédigé et mis en ordre par M. de Michel. Paris, 1713. 1 vol., in-12, veau, carte.

A narrative of La Salle's colonization on Bay St. Louis (now Matagorda), Texas, by an honest and intelligent observer and co-worker on the ground. Good description of the coast region and of what is now known as Eastern Texas. Fort St. Louis, situated on Lavaca (des Boeufs) river, right bank, two leagues from the bay. (Later, 1722, the site of the Spanish Presidio Santa Maria de Loreto de la Bahia del Espiritu Santo; and still later, in Anglo-American times, Dimmit's Point, and now a waste in a large cattle pasture.) Account of La Salle's attempt to return overland to Canada, and of his tragic death on the way. The Ceniz village on the upper waters of the Neches and the Trinity fully described. First mention of horses east of the Rio Grande valley in Texas; and the horned frog or lizard (phrynosoma cornutum), first noted and described as a reptile in Texas, and then thought to be venomous.

— The next year, that is in 1714, appeared an English translation of Joutel under this title: A Journal of the Last Voyage performed by De La Salle to the Golph of Mexico, to find out the Mouth of the Mississippi River. Containing an account of the settlements he endeavored to make on the coast of the aforesaid bay, his unfortunate death, and the travels of his companions for the space of eight hundred leagues, across that inland country of America now called Louisiana (and given by the King of France to M. Crozat) till they came into Canada. Written in French, by Mons. Joutel, a commander in that expedition, and illustrated from the edition just published in Paris. With an exact map of that vast country, and a copy of the letters patent granted by the King of France to M. Crozat. 8vo. London, 1714.

— Another English translation, 1719.

— Also in French's Hist. Col. La., Vol. 7<sup>i</sup>.

— A Spanish version in 1831. See TORNEL.

Kendall, Geo. Wilkins. (Vt., 1800-68). Narrative of the Texas Santa Fé Expedition, comprising a description of a Tour Through Texas and Across the Great Southwestern Prairies, the Comanche and Caygüa Hunting Grounds; with an account of the sufferings from want of food, losses from hostile Indians, and final capture of the Texans, and their march, as prisoners, to the City of Mexico. 2 vols. 8vo., pp. 405 and 406. Map and illust. N. Y., 1844.

— An edition issued in London in 1845.

— VIII Letters on Sheep Raising. Tex. Al., 1858 to 1867.

Mr. K. was the most successful sheep raiser in Texas.

— The War between the United States and Mexico. Illustrated. Embracing twelve pictorial drawings of all the principal conflicts, by Carl Nebel, with a description of each battle. Folio, 52 pages. N. Y., Phila., 1851.

Mr. K.'s position on Gen. Taylor's staff now was in strong contrast to his wretched life as a prisoner of war in Mexico in 1841-42. A great work.

"As a writer," says Dr. Randall, "he [Geo. W. Kendall] . . . possessed the rare art of giving the most dry details all the vivid interest of a well-told tale. His style was vigorous, direct, and crisp, while it had a most captivating ease and unstudiedness; and gleams of quaint and irresistible humor flashed frequently through his discussions of the most prosaic topics."

Kendall's best work is undoubtedly "The Narrative of the Santa Fé Expedition." On its first appearance, highly commended by leading reviews on both sides of the Atlantic; and its popularity was assured. Within the next eight years 40,000 copies were sold. No Texas library complete without it. Mr. K. was also the founder and associate editor of the New Orleans Picayune.

Kendrick, Carroll. Live Religious Issues of the Day. Rules and Principles for Bible Study, with many exemplifications, etc.; also Examples for Public Bible Readings. 564 pp., 8vo. Port. Nashville, 1890.

The author one of the strongest pioneer Christian preachers in Texas. This work, indicative of critical research, honesty of purpose, and of unquenchable zeal for Christ.

— Life sketch of, by his son, Dr. Julian C. Kendrick. Bonham Christ. Mess., Nov. 2, 1887.

Kennedy, Wm. (Scot., 1799-1849). Brit. Consul, Galveston. Texas: The Rise, Progress, and Prospects of the Republic of Texas. 2 vols., 8vo. London, 1841. Maps.

This book, on its first publication, was pronounced to be the best history of Texas extant. The Texan Congress passed a resolution of thanks to the author. Mr. K. visited Texas in 1839 for historic material. His favorable report on return to England doubtless prepared the way for English recognition of the Republic. The physical description of Texas in Vol. 1 the best published up to that time, and the history proper in calm and dignified style, and not without literary merit. No historian of Texas has more eloquent paragraphs. Out of print, and scarce.

— Texas; its Geography, Natural History, and Topography. By William Kennedy, Esq. 8vo, pp. 118. N. Y., 1844.

Merely a separate reprint of Book I, Vol. 1, of the author's history of Texas, but withal a valuable physical description of the Republic, with something of its natural history. Mr. K. was not without scientific attainments, and his work is still highly prized.

Kerr, Hugh. (Ireland, 1795–1843). A Poetical Description of Texas and Narrative of many interesting events in that country, embracing a period of several years, interspersed with moral and political impressions; also an appeal to those who oppose the union of Texas with the United States, and the anticipation of that event. To which is added The Texas Heroes, Nos. 1 and 2. 16mo., pp. 122. N. Y., 1838.

A specimen stanza:

“At Anahuac and Nacogdoche
Velasco and Tenosticlan
Some Texas volunteers approach,
And promptly captured every man.”

— Education in Texas. Chapter in Scarff's Yoakum.

A plain and unvarnished statement of the origin and establishment of the University of Texas; "based on the facts and records," it may be accepted as entirely trustworthy. While the origin of the University is due to President Lamar, the credit of its final establishment justly belongs to Gov. Roberts and his administration. Senator John C. Buchanan, of Wood county, introduced the bill establishing the University, which, with some few amendments, became the law. Among its strong supporters were Senators R. M. Wynne, John M. Duncan, John Young Gooch and A. W. Terrell. At the special session of the Legislature, April, 1882, Senator Buchanan, as Chairman of the Committee on Education, reported Senate bills 20 and 22 by substitute, which finally passed, giving the University 2,000,000 acres of land, and placing it upon a firm footing.

Lane, Gen. Walter P. (Ireland, 1817-87). A San Jacinto Veteran. The Adventures and Recollections [an autobiography]; containing sketches of the Texian, Mexican and late wars, with several Indian fights thrown in; also, sketches of the General, by Victor M. Rose, by John Henry Brown, and by Judge Hogg.

A raw Irish youth of 19 at San Jacinto, where he distinguished himself. Won additional laurels in the Mexican War. A fighting general in the civil conflict.

Le Clerc, Frederic. M. D. Le Texas et Sa Revolution. 104 pp., 8vo. Paris, 1840.

Impressed by the French name and extraction of President Lamar, the author dedicated to him this book. There is reflected in the work the author's scientific attainments and political sagacity.

Le Clercq, Chrestien. Premier etablissement de la foy dans la Nouvelle France contenant la publication de l'evangile, l'histoire des Colonies francaises, et les fameuses decouvertes depuis le fleuve St. Laurent, La Louisiane et le fleuve Colbert jusqu' au golphe Mexique, achevees sous la conduite de feu M. de la Salle par ordre du Roy, etc. 2 vols., small 8vo. Paris, 1691.

"It is a well written history of the Recollect Missions and La Salle's voyages," says Shea, "the rest is satire." Of the three parts of the work, the third is historical, noting La Salle's descent of the Mississippi, his Texan colony at Fort St. Louis, and his tragic death; of which this is the first printed account. Book soon suppressed by the French government; but it appeared the next year, without the author's name, as "Histoire des Colonies Francaises," etc.

Leon, Alonso de. Derrotero de la jornada que hizo el General Alonso de Leon, para el descubrimiento de la Bahia del Espiritu Santo, y poblacion de Franceses, Año de 1689. Parkman's La Salle, p. 444.

and other historical matters of interest to the denomination. 2 vols., royal 8vo., 654 and 782 pp. Illustrations. Austin, 1892-93.

A standard history of the Baptist churches in Texas; but its statements as to other denominations must be taken cum grano satis. In Vol. II, however, are brief sketches of other churches, as told by their own writers.

Among the men sketched are: Joseph Bays, R. C. Buckner, R. E. B. Baylor, R. B. Burleson, W. C. Buck, R. C. Burleson, W. C. Craue, N. T. Byars, Hosea Garrett, J. B. Cranfill, Thos. Hanks, R. B. H. Long, of the U. S. Top. Engineers. Compiled from the notes of Major Long, Mr. T. Say, and other gentlemen of the party. By Edwin James, botanist and geologist to the expedition. In 3 vols., 8vo. London, 1823.

Long returned down the Canadian, through the Panhandle of Texas; and, says R. T. Hill, "To Major Long's description of it belongs the credit of being the first practical contribution to geologic knowledge of Texas by the government explorations."

Looscan, Adele Briscoe. The Fifty-seventh Anniversary of Texan Independence.

Paper read at the celebration in Houston, March 2, 1893. Sent by Aurelia Hadley Mohl, instead of her usual leading article in "Woman's World," Houston Post. Pronounced by Mrs. Mohl to be "an admirable, earnest, and instructive paper," in which opinion all true critics will agree.

Second in his art to none in Texas, and probably the best living authority on the topography of Houston's line of retreat and of the battlefield of San Jacinto. Other paintings: Lee at the Wilderness, destroyed in the burning of the capitol, 1881; Stephen F. Austin and Jefferson Davis, in Senate chamber, capitol of Texas; and portraits of Govs. Hogg and Culberson and Capt. R. M. Potter. The Battle of San Jacinto is the artist's masterpiece. Sherman breaking the Mexican right wing, Lamar doubling back their left, while Houston and Rusk pierce their center; Santa Anna in flight. Almost worth a Texan's life to see.

Admiral Baudin's French fleet, returning from the reduction of Vera Cruz, touched at Velasco, and thence sailed to Galveston. The admiral, with two attendants, Chaucart and the author, landed at Velasco, May 5, and proceeded under the conduct of Gen. Thos. Jefferson Green to Col. Wharton's, four leagues distant. The next morning, Lieut. Clendenning, of the Texan army, set out with the French party, in Col. Groce's carriage, to Houston, where they all arrived on the 8th. After several days of festivities at the Texan capital with President Lamar and Dr. Ashbel Smith, the distinguished visitors proceeded by steamboat down Buffalo Bayou and rejoined the fleet at Galveston. Admiral Baudin's favorable report of Texas doubtless hastened the recognition of the Republic by France.

Also visit to Texas.

Manzanet, Damian. Bahia del Espiritu Santo en Texas. Carta de Don Damian Manzanet à Don Carlos de Siguenza sobre el descubrimiento de la Bahia del Espiritu Santo. MS., A. and M. College Library.

The only date occurs in a memorandum added on the back, recording an earthquake in the port of Vera Cruz on the 30th Sept., 1709.

Father Manzanet attended Leon's expedition against Fort St. Louis, April, 1689. The fort in ruins and several ghastly skeletons in sight. The cradle and the grave of the first Christian settlement in Texas. Interview at camp on the Guadalupe with the chief of the Tejas, a tribe that dwelt in the far north. Favorable report of the Tejas Indians.

— Diario que hicieron los Padres Missioneros 1691. Mission Work in Texas.

A circumstantial account of the establishment and dedication of the first Christian mission within the limits of our State. Dedicated with imposing ceremonies June 1, 1690, under the name of "San Francisco de los Tejas." Under the auspices of the Franciscans, and named in honor of their founder. Situated at the capital of the Tejas Indians, between the headwaters of the Neches and the Trinity. MS. 17th century, in A. and M. College Library.

"This expedition started from Fort Smith, in Arkansas, and traversed the Indian Territory, Texas, New Mexico, and California."

Moore, Commodore E. W. (Va., 1811-65). Commodore Texan Navy, 184-. Appeal to the People of Texas. 204 pp., 8vo. Galveston, 1843.

Moore resigned his position in the U. S. Navy to become a naval officer in the Republic of Texas, and his name is associated with all that is glorious in the achievements of the Texan Navy. His "Appeal" shows a remarkable case of executive persecution. Says Lt. Raphael Semmes, U. S. Navy (and later Admiral C. S. Navy): "Next to Gen. Houston, the hero of San Jacinto, Texas owes more to Commodore Moore than to any other man who has figured in the drama of her revolution."

Moore, Francis, Jr. Editor Telegraph. Map and Description of Texas, containing sketches of its History, Geology, Geography, and Statistics.

Mota, Padilla Matias de. Conquista del Reino de la Nueva Galicia. . . Breve descripcion de los Reinos Nueva. . . Estramadura ó Coahuila; Nuevas Filipenas ó Texas. MS. 2 vols., folio. Written in 1792, and published by the Mexican Society of Geography and Statistics, 1870.

The author was a native of Guadalajara, and Alguacil Mayor of the Santo Oficio; Coahuila and Texas both described in this work.

Morfit, Henry M. U. S. Agent to Texas. Report upon the Political, Military, and Civil Condition of Texas. 36 pp., 8vo. 1836. House Docs. No. 35, 24th Cong., 2d sess.

In a series of official letters to John Forsyth, Secretary of State U. S., Aug. 13, 1836, et seq.

"There are 48 Mexican officers and near 600 men prisoners at and near Galveston, besides a few in this place [Velasco]. . . . I examined in Quintana many of the arms taken at the battle of San Jacinto, and am not surprised that the Mexicans were defeated, as the muskets are of Spanish make and appear to have been worthless many years ago."

As to the war, "Texas was obliged to defend herself against those who made war upon republicanism; so that her present position proceeds not from her own revolutions, but from those of Mexico."

Not the truth, when he says that Texas "as a State has sustained itself by men and means drawn wholly from a distance." The battle of San Jacinto was fought by the bona fide citizens of Texas, with perhaps not exceeding fifty exceptions.

On the whole, a favorable report.

Morphis, J. M. History of Texas, from its Discovery and Settlement; with a description of its principal cities and counties, and the agricultural, mineral and material resources of the State. Illust. 601 pp., 8vo. N. Y., 1875.

Otermin, Don Antonio de. Gobernador y Capitan General del Nuevo Mexico. Consulta al Virey 1682, Feb. 11.

Official report, and disclosing plans for "settlement and missionary work in the El Paso region."

— Extractos de Doc. Hist. N. Mex. sacados de los autos existentes en el oficio del Supremo Gobierno de esta Corte, que sobre el Levantamiento del año de 1680, formo Don Antonio de Otermin. Also, Escalante, Carta. Arch. Gen. Mex., xxv.

This record of Gen. Otermin extends from Aug., 1680, to the spring of 1682. The pueblo of Isleta, the oldest town in Texas, was established in 1682, for the friendly Tigieux Indians, brought down from Isleta del Norte (N. Mex.), during the Pueblo Rebellion, and called by Bonilla Corpus Christi de Isleta. The settlement still exists, but with a diminishing population. The children admitted to the free schools of Texas as whites. I am indebted to Prof. F. V. Hodge (Smithsonian Institute) for information as to the origin of Isleta. See Bancroft Ariz. and N. Mex., p. 191.

Oviedo, G. Hernandez de. Coronica de las Indias. La Hystoria general de las Indias agora nueuamente impressa corregido y emendada. 192 leaves (black letter). Salamanca, 1547.

Comprising L books. Contains in Lib. xxxv the letter (or what purports to be its substance) of Cabeza de Vaca and Andres Dorantes to the Audiencia of Española on the Narvaez expedition. The first contribution to Texan history. The first edition of this work of the first chronicler of the New World came out in 1526, and another in 1535.

In 1851-55, the last edition, amended, with life and works of the author, by D. José Amador de los Rios, was published by the Royal Academy of History, Madrid, in iv parts. The letter of Cabeza and Dorantes in Part iii. An illustration of the horned frog or lizard (Phrynosoma cornutum) in Part i.

Painter, A. H. K. (San Antonio). Poems: The Blue and the Gray; The Death of Rienzi; and The Fall of the Alamo. Dixon's Poets.

Palm, Swante. (Sweden, 1815-). Ph. D. Swedish Consul in Austin. Swedish Poetry. The Viking. Baker's Tex. Scrap Book.

Translated from the Swedish of E. G. Geyer into English verse by Swante Palm.

— The Wild Man of the Woods. Id.

Mr. Palm was the first Swedish Consul in Texas, having been appointed in 1866, and is now the oldest in the United States by age and appointment.

Parker, Jas. W. Narrative of the perilous adventures, miraculous escapes and sufferings of, . . . during a frontier residence in Texas of fifteen years. . . . Appendix, a narrative of Mrs. Rachel Plummer's captivity of 21 months among the Comanches. 95 and 36 pp., 12mo. Louisville, 1844.

Parker, A. A. Trip to the West and Texas; comprising a Journey of Eight Thousand Miles through New York, Michigan, Illinois, Missouri, Louisiana, and Texas, in the autumn and winter of 1834-35. 2 cuts. 276 pp., 12mo. Concord, N. H., 1835.

— Trip to the West and Texas. Second edition. . . .

With a Brief Sketch of the Texian War. 380 pp., 12mo. Em-presario map. Concord, N. H., 1836.

One of the earliest descriptions of Texas in English, by an observing and friendly traveler. States that the Twin Sisters cannon at San Jacinto were iron four pounders.

Parker, W. B. Notes taken during the expedition commanded by Captain R. B. Marcy, U. S. A., through unexplored Texas, in the summer and fall of 1854. By W. B. Parker, attached to the expedition. 246 pp., 12 mo. Phila., 1856.

A readable and reliable description of northwestern Texas before its settlement.

Parks, Rev. W. H. The Texas Baptist Pulpit. 421 pp., 8vo. Dallas, 1893.

Twenty-eight sermons by twenty-six preachers.

Parkman, Francis. (Mass., 1823-). LL. D. La Salle and the Discovery of the Great West. 483 pp., 8vo. Boston, 1885. Twelfth edition.

The first edition, entitled "The Discovery of the Great West," was issued in 1869. The name of La Salle was added to the title in the eleventh edition. One of the series of the author's historical narratives, "France and England in North America," and fully equal to any of its predecessors in style and interest. The latter part of the book has La Salle's scheme of planting a colony on the Mississippi, and of his actual work in Texas. We feel after reading Dr. Parkman's "La Salle and the Great West," that there is nothing more to be said on the subject of French colonization in Texas. The most scholarly and ornate historical composition which has yet appeared on any part of Texan history.

Pearre, Chas. B. A Review of the Unconstitutional Laws of the Twelfth Legislature, and the Oppressions of the Present Administration [Davis, E. J.]. 169 pp., 8vo. Baltimore, 1872.

A fearless exposé of tyranny. Apart from his despotism in office, Gov. Davis was an honest man.

Pearreson, P. E. Sketch of the life of Judge Edwin Wallace. . . . Battle of Velasco. . . . Selecting the site and founding the present capital of Texas. Pam. 25 pp., 8vo. 1874.

Pease, Elisha Marshall. (Conn., 1810-8-). Governor, 1853-57. Inaugural and messages.

A very important administration. The public buildings at Austin completed. Assignment of $2,000,000 of the Santa Fe money to the school fund. In reconstruction times held the office of Governor by military appointment in 1867-68, not satisfactorily to himself and still less so to the public. Reconstruction Records.

Pease, L. T. Geographical and historical views of Texas, with a detailed account of the Texian Revolution and War. Illustrations. 8vo. Houston, 1837. Niles' S. A. and Mex., Vol. i, pp. 213-369.

A well written and reliable volume; now scarce.

Pedraza, M. G. Manifiesto a sus compatriotes; ó sea una reseña de su vida publica. Nueva-Orleans, 1831. 132 pp., 8vo.

Our second Mexican President-elect; but counted out, he recites his wrongs in a foreign land.

Peña, Antonio de la. Derrotero de la expedicion en la Provincia de los Texas, Nuevo Reyno de Philipinas, que passa á executor D. Joseph de Azlor. 29 pp., folio. Maps. Mexico, 1722.

Interesting information on the Texan Missions.

Penn, Maj. W. E. Dynamite; or Evils of the Social Dance. Pam. 50 pp. Memphis, 1884.

— Harvest Bells. 300 pp. John Church & Co. About 1890.

A musical work. Several editions.

Once a lawyer, then a Baptist preacher, and a pioneer in traveling evangelism in Texas. Somewhat sensational, but different in style from that of which Sam Jones is a prominent type.

Pennybacker, Mrs. A. J. H. A New History of Texas, for Schools; also for General Reading and for Teachers preparing Themselves for Examination. Illus. 244 pp., 12mo. Tyler, 1888.

— Revised edition, enlarged, with new matter, maps, and other attractive features. 412 pp., 12mo. Palestine, 1895.

The mechanical execution of the book and style unobjectionable, and with fewer inaccuracies than are usually found in school histories.

Perkins, Jas. H. (Boston, 1810–49). Annals of the West, . . . from the discovery of the Mississippi Valley to the year 1845. 591 pp., 8vo. Cinti., 1847.

Account of Burr's conspiracy and Gen. Wilkinson's movements in Louisiana, including his campaign on the Sabine.

Perry, Jas. H. D. D., M. E. Church. The Battle of San Jacinto; its Causes and Consequences. Pam. N. Y., 1859.

A pulpit address and caustic criticism on Houston, by one of his aids at San Jacinto.

Pierce, Geo. F. Bishop M. E. Church, South. Incidents of Western Travel, in a series of letters, edited by Thos. O. Simmons, D. D. Port. 249 pp., 12mo. Nashville, 1859.

Presided over the conference held in the State capitol, November, 1858. The letters are genial and racy.

Philpot, J. P. The Kingdom of Israel, from its Inception under Joshua in the Year of the World 2553 to the Second Coming of Christ. 350 pp., 12mo. Nashville, 1888–89.

The author was a man of irreproachable character, a Methodist, and resident of Limestone County.

Pike, Z. M. An Account of Expeditions to the Sources of the Mississippi, and through the Western Part of Louisiana to the Sources of the Arkansaw, Kans, La Platte, and Pierre Jaun rivers, performed by order of the government of the United States, during the years 1805, 1806, 1807. And a tour through the interior parts of New Spain, when conducted through those provinces, by order of the Captain General, in the year 1807. By Major Z. M. Pike. Illustrated with maps and charts. Phila., 1810.

— An English edition, London, 1811.

— A French version, Paris, 1812.

We hail Pike as the first American writer at some length on Texas, though his work be in the form of an official report. While exploring the headwaters of the Arkansas he inadvertently wandered over into Spanish territory and found himself and command prisoners at Santa Fe. Escorted thence, in 1807, by Spanish dragoons, down the Rio Grande, and through Texas over the Sabine, as shown in Part iii; while in the corresponding appendix is a general description of Texas, and of the manners and customs of the people, with special notice of the missions and high society in San Antonio.

Pike, Corporal. The Scout and Ranger. Personal adventures as a Texas Ranger, . . . and afterwards a scout and spy in Tennessee and Alabama. Illust. 394 pp., 12mo. Cincinnati, 1865.

In the Union army.

— Live Boys in the Black Hills; or the Young Texan Gold Hunters. By Arthur Morecum (pseud.). 16mo. Boston, 1880.

Pilgrim, Thos. J. (Conn., 1805-77). Baptist. Sketch of. Link's Biog. and Hist. Mag., Vol. i.

Organizer of the first Sunday school in Texas, at San Felipe, 1829. School suppressed because contrary to Mexican law.

Pilsbury, T. M. C. Speech on the Texas boundary. H. R., Aug., 1848. Pam. 7 pp., 8vo. Washington, 1848.

The ablest of all the speeches on the subject, showing by irrefutable argument, even from Mexican sources, the right of Texas to the Rio Grande boundary.

Plautus, Caspar. (Honorio Philopono, pseud.). Nova Typis Transacta Navigatio Novi Orbis Indiae Occidentalis, 1621. Smith's Trans. Relacion, 1871, p. 253.

The supposed author, Philipono, dedicates the work with fulsome praise to Caspar Plautus, a monk in Austria. But Philipono and Plautus turn out to be one and the same man. The monk impugns the character of Cabega de Vaca, because of his alleged miracles; not, however, on the ground of the impossibility of miracles, but because alleged to be done by a layman. Cabega de Vaca impresses me as a good man, incapable of deception, but fallible, like other men.

Plummer, Mrs. Clarissa. Narrative of the captivity of, among the Comanches, and also of Mrs. Caroline Harris. 24 pp., 8vo. N. Y., 1838.

Captured while en route to Texas, and their husbands murdered. Rescued within about two years.

Poinsett, Hon. Joel R. (Charleston, S. C.) Notes on Mexico, made in the Autumn of 1822; accompanied by an historical sketch of the Revolution, and translations of the official reports on the present state of the country, by a citizen of the United States. Map. 352 pp., 8vo. Phila., 1824.

In appendix are found Alaman's report to Constituent Congress; Iturbide's address; Projet of constitution for the Mexican Republic, signed by Chairman Arizpe and all the other members of the committee on constitution, Nov. 19, 1823. The Projet had forty articles. Was this the Projet prepared by Austin? Read address of the committee.

Ramos de Arizpe, Miguel. (1775-1849). Deputy from Coahuila to the National Cortes of Spain, in 1811. Memorial on the Natural, Political, and Civil State of the Province of Coahuila in the Kingdoms of Mexico, and those of the new Kingdoms of Leon, New Santander, and Texas. Cadiz, 1812. An English translation. Phila., 1814.

Arizpe was expelled from the Spanish Cortes and imprisoned and banished for his audacity in exposing the corruptions of government. Later the friend of S. F. Austin, and chairman of the committee that reported the document adopted and known as the "Constitution of 1824." One of the purest patriots of Mexico.

— *Idea general sobre la conducta politica de D. — Speeches in Congress, 1857-61.

— Personal explanation. H. R., Feb. 28, 1859.

A clear expression of political conviction and duty. "I repudiate all sectional heresies; I repudiate everything that is not national, everything that looks to a violation of the moral law to build up political parties or sectional parties. . . I am going home to appeal for the constitution of the Union; for all that is right and all that is just against the demoralizing doctrines of filibusters, and against the dangerous heresies of reopening the (African) slave trade. . . I have always professed to be a national man; in my twelve speeches that I made in my district last summer (1858), . . . I declared that I never advocated a sentiment in Texas which I would not advocate in any State, district or township in the Union."

— On the state of the Union. H. R., Jan. 15, 1861.

A strong plea for the Union from a Southern standpoint.

— Reports as Postmaster General C. S. A., 1861-65. Rebellion Records.

Judge Reagan was taken prisoner with Gov. Lubbock and President Davis in 1865, and had some experience of prison life at Fort Warren.

— Speeches in Congress. H. R., 1875-87.

— Speeches in U. S. Senate, 1887-91.

Judge Reagan was a cotemporary of nearly all the notable characters of the Republic, having been a resident of Texas since 1839. His public service was only briefly interrupted by the fall of the Confederacy.

The first of a series of Almanacs issued during the years 1857-8-9-60-1-2-3-4-6-7-8-9-70-1-2-3. These Almanacs published for the first time much of the original materials for a history of Texas, and are recognized to-day as the great depositories of valuable information, historical and miscellaneous, as to Anglo-American Texas. No collection of Texana complete without Richardson's Texas Almanacs.

Ripley, R. S. Brevet Major U. S. Army. The War in Mexico. 2 vols., 8vo. Maps of battlefields. N. Y., 1849.

With a criticism on its campaigns, based on the axioms of Napoleon. In appendix is found correspondence of citizens of the United States with Gen. Almonte in 1846 and 1847; a treasonable conspiracy of American abolitionists with the enemies of their country. Written soon after the war, but as a military history it has not yet been excelled. Scarce and highly valued.

— A Spanish version by De Mora. London, 1824.

One of the standard histories of the Mexican Revolution.

Roche, Jas. Jeffrey. (Ireland, 1817). The Story of the Filibusters; to which is added the Life of Col. David Crockett. 373 pp., 8vo. Illustrated. London and N. Y., 1891.

Our leading Texans are classed as filibusters. An elegant volume, in good style, but has some historical inaccuracies as to Texas.

Rockwell, Julius. M. C., Conn. The Admission of Texas as a State. H. R., 1845.

In opposition to it, argued in support of the Connecticut legislative resolution, May, 1845, one clause of which reads thus: "Resolved, that a measure so unfounded in principle, so dangerous as a precedent, and so destructive in its tendency to the peace and prosperity of the country and the objects of the Union, can never receive the sanction of the people of Connecticut."

The annexation of Texas shook the Union to its foundation. The extension of slavery was the chief objection in the North; but there were besides this, good constitutional grounds of objection, recognized by statesmen North and South.

Roemer, Dr. Ferdinand. Texas mit besonderer Rücksicht auf deutsche Auswanderung und die physischen Verhältnisse des Landes nach eigener Beobachtung geschildert; mit einem naturwissenschaftlichen Anhang und einer topographisch-geognostischen Karte von Texas. 464 pp., 8vo. Bonn, 1849.

This "Texas, with special reference to German emigration," was based largely on the personal observation of a scientist. An excellent description of the country, including its geology, fauna, and flora.

— Geology of Texas. Jour. Sci., 2d s., 2:328. 2d s., 6:21.

— The Texas Vendetta.

— Ross' Texas Brigade. Being a narrative of events connected with its service in the late war between the States. 185 pp., 12mo. Louisville, 1881.

Dedicated to Gen. Ross. Has the organization of the Brigade; all its campaigns, including battles of Chastanablah, Elk Horn, Iuka, Oakland, and capture of Holly Springs. Sketches and portraits of Gens. L. S. Ross, John S. Griffith, and sketches of Gen. J. W. Whitfield, Cols. Elkanah Greer, H. P. Mabry, D. W. Jones, and Hon. O. N. Hollingsworth; and sketches and portraits of Cols. Jack Wharton, John H. Brooks, and P. F. Ross. Also an account of the Battle of the Wichita; reminiscences of Camp Chase; and The South, a poem of three stanzas. The author was a member of this famous Texan Brigade, whose history he narrates so well.

— Demara, the Comanche Queen, and Other Rhymes. 112 pp., 12mo. N. Y., 1882.

Dedicated to Gov. Ireland. About forty short poems, some quite readable.

— History of Victoria County. Account of Its Settlement, Development, and Its Progress. 216 pp., 8vo. Laredo, 1883.

Dedicated to Col. John J. Linn. I can call to mind no better county history in Texas. History, geography, and biography. Compiled with painstaking care. Also muster roll of Col. Jas. Reiley's regiment, raised in that section.

— The Life and Services of Gen. Ben McCulloch. 260 pp., 8vo. Ports. Phila., 1888.

The only complete life of this distinguished Texan, who fell at Pea Ridge, with fine sketch of John Henry Brown.

— Sketch of in Dixon's Poets.

Rosecrans, J. H. Christian Preacher and State Sunday School Evangelist of Texas. How to Study a Sunday School Lesson. For teachers and pupils. 61 pp., 16mo. Cinti., 1887.

An original treatment of the subject.

Rosenberg, W. von. Kritik des Geschichte des Vereins zum Schutze der Deutschen Auswanderer nach Texas. Pam. 31 pp., 8vo. Austin, 1894.

On the German Emigration Society in Texas, denying that German colonization in Texas was the result of a contract between the British government and the German princes.

Ross, Geo. von. Des Auswanderers Hand-buch Getreue Schilderung der Vereinigten Staaten von Nordamerika. 509 pp., 12mo. Elberfeld and Iserlohn, 1851.

In this description of the United States seventeen pages are devoted to Texas.

— Texas . . . für Deutsche Auswanderer. 85 pp., 8vo. Map. Rudolstadt, 1851.

Good.

Ross, Lawrence Sullivan. (Ia., 1838-). Governor, 1887-90. Inaugurals and messages.

— Sketch of, in Rose's Ross' Texas Brigade.

An experienced soldier Indian fighter on the frontier; now President of the A. and M. College.

Rowe, Horace. (1852-84). Poet. The Years of Youth. A series of original poems. 151 pp., 16mo. Phila., 1873.

— The Mind. A poem. 1879.

— Critique on Miss Gerald's "Adenheim," and "Moss Rose." The Amaranth, March, 1882.

— Critique on Mrs. West's "Marble Lily and Other Poems." Ib., March, 1882.

A precocious and erratic genius. It is claimed that he received some recognition from Longfellow, especially for his poem entitled "The Mind."

Ruiz, Antonio. Fall of the Alamo and Massacre of Texans; with list of men who fell there. Tex. Al., 1860, p. 80.

Rusk, Thos. Jefferson. (S. C., 1806-57). Secretary of War and Chief Justice in the Republic; U. S. Senator. Speech on burial of Fannin's men at Goliad, June, 1836.

—— Report Battle of San Jacinto. Yoakum's Tex. Hist.

—— Speeches in the U. S. Senate, 1846-57. Cong. Globe.

Rusk was naturalized as a Texan February, 1835, at Nacogdoches, before Radford Berry, alcalde, and Sam Houston and Nat Robbins as witnesses. One of the great men of Texas, both as soldier and statesman. Fell by his own hand at Nacogdoches, where a fitting monument stands to his memory.

Ruthven, A. S. Grand Sec., and Past Grand Master. Proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Texas from its Organization in the city of Houston, December, A. D. 1837, A. L. 5837, to the close of the Grand Annual Communication held at Palestine, January 19, A. D. 1857, A. L. 5857. Compiled from the original records and documents now in possession of the Grand Lodge; together with the constitutions which have been severally adopted up to the present time. Also an interesting history of the origin, rise, and progress of the Masonic order in Texas. 2 vols., 8vo. Galveston, 1857.

Ruxton, Geo. F. Adventures in Mexico and the Rocky Mountains. 312 pp., 12mo. N. Y., 1848. 2d ed., London, 1849, and new ed. in 1861.

By an intelligent and observing traveler.

Ryan, Mrs. Rosine B. Address in presenting Texas Women's Folio of Leaves (from World's Exposition, Chicago) to Gov. Hogg, for the State of Texas, March, 1894. See SWAYNE, Mrs. J. W.

Sabatier. Life of St. Francis of Assisi. Translated by Louise Seymour Houghten. 448 pp., 8vo. N. Y., 1894.

An excellent work, and helpful to an understanding of mission work in Texas, all done by the followers of St. Francis.

Sage, Rufus B. Scenes in the Rocky Mountains and in Oregon, California, New Mexico, Texas, and the Grand Prairies; or Notes by the Way during an Excursion of Three Years; with a description of the countries passed through, including their geography, geology, resources, present condition, and the different nations inhabiting them. By a New Englander. With a map. 304 pp., 12mo. Phila., 1846.

A second edition, revised and enlarged to an octavo, and signed by the author, Rufus B. Sage. Phila., 1854.

Salmeron de Zarate, Padre Gerónimo. Predicador de la orden, de los Menores de la Provincia del Santo Evangelio. Relaciones de todas las cosas que en el Nuevo Mexico se han visto y Sabido, asi por mar como por tierra, desde el año de 1538 hasta el de 1626. Doc. Hist. Mex., Vols. ii, iii, 3d series, folio, 55 pp. Bancroft's Ariz. and N. Mex., p. 21.

The chief events of New Mexico from 1538 to 1626, by one of the Franciscan Padres, including the expeditions through western Texas on the Rio Grande and Pecos.

Semmes, Lt. Raphael. (Md., 1810-77). U. S. Navy. Service Afloat and Ashore during the Mexican War. Illust. 480 pp., 12mo.

Semmes was on Gen. Worth's staff from Jalapa to the City of Mexico. A critical history of Scott's campaign. In chapter iii is a notice of Austin's colonization in Texas, and of the causes of the Texan Revolution, all told exceptionally well, with favorable notice of Commodore Moore and the Texan navy.

— Admiral C. S. Navy. Memoirs of Service Afloat during the War between the States. 8vo. Baltimore, 1869. Another edition, 1889.

The Alabama sunk the Hatteras about twelve or fifteen miles off Galveston, January 11, 1863. Magruder's lately victorious Texans on the island distinctly heard the heavy guns. The Federal blockading squadron kept off Capt. Semmes from his friends on the shore.

Smith, Henry. (Ky., 1794, Tex., 1827-51). Provisional Governor, November, 1835, to March 1, 1836.

Dissensions soon arose between the Governor and the Council, and while they quarreled, the country was left defenseless against Mexican invasion. Confessedly the most inefficient government that Texas ever had. See Ordinances and Decrees of the Consultation and Acts of the Provisional Government and the Journals.

— Memorials of the Expedition of Pamphilo de Narvaez. Hist. Mag., vi, p. 128.

— Narvaez and Florida. Ib., series 2, Vol. i, p. 24.

Smith's translations of Cabega de Vaca's Relacion already noted; and those of the Knight of Elvas and Luys Hernandez de Biedma referred to as No. 5, Bradford Club Series. Smith's theory that Narvaez's shipwreck occurred on the coast of modern Florida, virtually abandoned by himself, is not tenable in the light of later research. This coast, in its physical geography, does not at all correspond with that of the coast region whence Cabega began his overland journey. See Cabega's Relacion.

Maize, America's Emblem, and Earth's Mystery. (M. R. Walton.)

Married Twilight. (Reba Gregory Prelat.)

Remember the Challenge. (Dr. Ellen Lawson Dabbs.)

Mrs. Rosine Ryan presented the folio to the State of Texas, through Gov. Hogg, in a felicitous speech, regretting the unavoidable absence of Mrs. Swayne, and stating that it was by her cultured taste and indefatigable zeal that this exquisite folio was compiled; and requesting that it be placed in the Department of History, where it will be a fitting associate of another book, . . . "The First History of Texas," . . . written by a woman. Gov. Hogg responded in his happiest style, with a well-merited tribute to the women of Texas. Commissioner Hollingsworth, Department of History, etc., under date of April 4, 1894, acknowledged, with thanks to Mrs. Swayne, the receipt of this valued Souvenir of Texas Women at the World's Exposition. Now in the State Library.

Underwood, —. M. C., Ky. Speech on the Texas Boundary. H. R., Aug. 7 and 8, 1850.

Shows from Mrs. Holley's "Texas," and Col. S. F. Austin's map that Texas did not then extend beyond Red River or the Nueces, with tabular statement of the Texan debt. True, but Texas later claimed a boundary beyond these rivers by right of conquest.

Urrea, José. General. Diario de las operaciones militares de la division que á su mando hizo en la campaña de Tejas. Con algunas observaciones para vindicarse ante sus conciudadanos. 4to., 136 pp. Victoriá de Durango, 1838.

In this journal of his military operations in Texas Urrea seeks to vindicate himself before his fellow citizens. The butcher of Goliad, under Santa Anna's order.

Vergennes, Charles Gravier, Conde de. Memoire Historique et Politique sur la Louisiane; accompagnée d'un Precis de la vie de ce Ministre. 181 pp., 8vo. Port. Paris, 1802.

This memoir on Louisiana includes a sketch of the reputed author, a distinguished French statesman. Whoever may be the author, the book is at all events a good resumé of Louisiana history, with some relation to that of Texas.

Written by the order of the Viceroy, Conde de Fuen-Clara, in accordance with the commands of his Majesty. So "this most useful work," as Cavo calls it, may be considered in the light of an official exhibit of New Spain, ecclesiastical and civil.

Chapter xlii, Book v, Vol. ii, is entitled "De La Provincia de los Texas, sus Poblaciones y Presidios. De San Antonio de Bejar."

Chapter xliii: "Del Presidio desguarnecido de Nuestra Señora de los Dolores de los Texas, Asinais, centro de esta Provincia."

Chapter xliv: "Del Presidio de Nuestra Señora del Pilar de los Adaes."

Chapter xlv: "Del Presidio, y Bahía del Espiritu Santo."

Chapter xvii, Book vi, entitled "Que contiene el Reyno del Nuevo Mexico."

Of special interest to students of Texan history, as it treats of the group of missions around El Paso del Norte, including the famous Isleta settlement made by Gov. Otermin in 1682.

The "Theatro Americano" was first published in 1746, in Mexico. There is no English version. Its testimony on the state of the Texan Presidios and Missions at that time is worthy of credit.

Villagra, Capitan Gaspar de. Historia de la Nueva Mexico. 16mo, 24 and 287 leaves. Alcala, 1610.

A history of New Mexico in the form of an epic poem, written only eleven years after its conquest. The author attended Onate's expedition and kept a diary.

Visit to Texas. Being the Journal of a Traveler through those Parts Most interesting to American Settlers, and Empresario Map. 264 pp., 12mo. Illust. Godfrey & Wiley, N. Y., 1834.

In appendix is a curious meteorological journal kept at Anahuac, from March to September, inclusive, 1831. A very rare book, containing a readable sketch of Texas. The author was victimized by American vendors of "Texas land scrip," found to be entirely worthless on his visit to Texas.

A strong argument for annexation. Senator W. was one of the first to move the acknowledgement of Texan independence. Texas lost the friendship of Mr. Walker in the Civil War.

Wallace, Joseph. The History of Illinois and Louisiana under the French Rule. 433 pp., 8vo. Cinti., 1893.

Includes narrative of La Salle's discoveries and his Texan colony.

Wallace, Susan E. (Ind., 1830-). Wife of Gen. Lew Wallace, Governor of New Mexico. The Land of the Pueblos. 285 pp., 12mo. Illust. N. Y., 1888.

The pioneer traveler through Texas, Cabeza de Vaca, is sketched with an artistic hand, and he becomes, after a few touches of her pencil, a hero of the first order. The story of the Pueblos, the indigenous possessors of the Rio Grande valley, a race of peaceful, industrious tillers of the soil on the advent of the Spaniards, is told in a charming style.

Opposed to acquisition of new territory from Mexico, as he was opposed to the annexation of Texas, and as he would be to the incorporation of new territory into the Union from any quarter, north or south. He also supported the various resolutions of the Massachusetts Legislature against the annexation, from March 10, 1838, to March, 1845; a copy of all of which is printed with the speech. The first resolution was "an earnest and solemn protest against the incorporation of Texas into this Union, and a declaration that no act done or compact made for such purpose by the government of the United States will be binding on the States or the people." The last was "in co-operation with other States, . . . to annul its conditions and defeat its accomplishment."

Wigfall, L. T. U. S. Senator. Speech, March 22, 1860.

An exposition of the Constitution in such a way as to make it appear but a league between sovereign States for certain specific purposes, by one of the ablest of the disciples of Mr. Calhoun.

Wilbarger, J. W. Indian Depredations in Texas. 672 pp., 8vo. Port., execrable wood cuts. Austin, 1886.

This book, compiled from authentic sources, may be considered in the main reliable. It tells of nearly all the Indian fights and battles in Texas, with sketches of many of the most noted Texan Indian fighters and frontiersmen. The account of the Parker Fort massacre, with its incidents, from 1836 to 1860, is De Shield's "Cynthia Ann Parker" incorporated literally by permission of the author. Smythe's historical sketch of Parker county furnishes the data for the article entitled "Gen. Wm. T. Sherman's Tour of Inspection [in 1871]."

Wilkinson, Gen. Jas. (1757-1825). U. S. Army. Memoirs of My Own Times. 3 vols., 8vo, 2293 pp. Diagrams and plans of battles, etc. Phila., 1816.

The memoirs in Vol. i; documents and other matter in Vols. ii and iii. Including the campaign on the Sabine.

Williams, A. M. (R. I., 1840-). Sam Houston and the War of Independence in Texas. With portrait and maps. 8vo. Boston and N. Y., 1893.

The latest and perhaps the best Life of Houston, as the lights and shades of his character both appear. But the hero of San Jacinto, in mental force, still towers head and shoulders above all his cotemporaries. Written in a graceful style, and apparently in a spirit of impartiality. A little more independent investigation, however, would have prevented the error, common among the biographers of Houston, that of occasionally accepting traditions for historical facts. The picture presented of Austin's Colony has never been equaled by any Texan writer. Much light shed on the general history of Texas.

Williams, Sam. The Public Debt of Texas, and the Best Mode of Paying it. 13 pp., 8vo. Houston, 1851.

The mode proposed was to pay the debt in full on the assurance that the money would be invested in Texas.

Dedicated to Franklin Pierce, President of the United States. Of but little interest.

Willson, Marcius. American History; comprising historical sketches of the Indian tribes; a description of American antiquities, with an inquiry into the origin of the Indian tribes; history of Mexico, and history of Texas. 672 pp. N. Y., 1847.

Wilson, Mrs. M. A. C. A Mier Prisoner's Widow, and President Ladies' Veteran Aid Association. Reminiscences of Persons, Events, Records, and Documents of Texian Times. Pam. 12 pp., 8vo. Austin, 1882.

— Scrap Book: Life sketch of her deceased husband, Capt. Wm. F. Wilson, including several of his historic letters from Castle Perote, Camp Bowie, etc., and his various commissions; autograph letter from ex-Confederate President Jefferson Davis, complimentary of Capt. Wilson; and "The Texian Heroes' Song."

Says Mrs. W.: "I succeeded, through the kind assistance of artistic friends, in obtaining with the amount of funds in hand a heliotype plate representing Col. Frank W. Johnson holding in his baud the framed picture of S. F. Austin, for the frontispiece of a song written at my request by Mrs. Mary Hunt McCaleb (now Mrs. Col. Odom), and arranged to music by G. P. Warner, to be sold for the benefit of the Soldiers' Home."

"The Texian Heroes' Song," in sentiment, words, and music, all right. Only one thing lacking, the mention of Col. Johnson's capture of Bexar, the greatest feat of the war.

Wilson, Robert A. Mexico and Its Religion; with Incidents of Travel in that Country, 1851-2-3-4. Illustrations. 406 pp. N. Y., 1855.

Next issued as "Mexico: Its Peasants and Its Priests," and then as "Mexico, California, and Central America."

"A very amusing and instructive book."—London Critic, in 1856.

The tenth chapter is devoted to Texas.

— A new History of the Conquest of Mexico. In which Las Casas' denunciation of the popular historians of that war are fully vindicated. 539 pp., 8vo. London, 1859.

The author is too extreme in some of his positions, but he is much nearer the truth than Prescott and the Spanish chroniclers. A good cause injured by an intemperate advocacy.

Woodman, David. Guide to Texas Emigrants. 192 pp., 12mo. Map. Boston, 1835.

The pamphlet published by the trustees of the Galveston Bay and Texas Land Company, in January, 1831, is the text of this book up to page 76. Its object, whatever may have been its exact title, was to circulate the knowledge of the colonization laws of Coahuila and Texas, with special reference to the land grants of Burnet, Vehlin, and Zavala. The accompanying map shows only these three grants, which constitute the lands of the Galveston Bay and Texas Land Company, all lying in Eastern Texas.

Yoakum, Henderson. (Tenn., 1810-56). History of Texas, from its first settlement in 1685 to its annexation to the United States in 1846. 2 vols., with an extended appendix and portraits. 1058 pp., 8vo. N. Y., 1856.

On the first appearance of this popular work a learned critic said: "Mr. Yoakum seems to have collected with great care all the existing material, with much that has never yet appeared in print. All contemporary accounts, personal narratives, private correspondence, individual reminiscences, newspaper statements, and official documents are called into requisition. The work, though wanting in system and condensed expression, is still of very great interest and value, and is deserving of general study. The author was evidently an enthusiastic admirer of Gen. Houston."—De Bow Rev., Sept., 1857.

— A new edition, amended and enlarged, by W. G. Scarff. With notes by Guy M. Bryan. In press.

Among the contributors: O. M. Roberts, "The Political History of Texas from 1845 to 1894." The masterpiece of the "Old Alcalde," and unequaled by any publication of the kind in Texas.

E. T. Dumble—"The Physical Geography, Topography, Geology, etc., of Texas." A scientific compend of special value to Texas.

J. J. Lane—"The University and the Schools." A creditable paper on a subject of never failing interest.

A. C. Gray—"History of the Texas Press." The most accurate and complete yet compiled.

Others named on various subjects: S. B. Maxey, D. G. Wooten, W. H. King, W. M. Kinney, Mrs. A. H. Mohl, Seth Shepard, and R. B. Hubbard.

Young, Mrs. M. J. (N. C., 1826-72). Familiar Lessons in Botany; with Flora of Texas. Adapted to general use in the Southern States. 646 pp., 8vo. N. Y. and Houston, 1873.

Claims no merit for original work, but gracefully acknowledges her obligations to Gray, Chapman, Drummond, et al.

— The Father of Texas, Stephen Fuller Austin. Gems Tex. Quarry.

A touching tribute to a noble character.

— The Legend of Sour Lake.

"Though not in verse, it is genuine poetry from beginning to end."
Anon.

—— Greeting to Hood's Brigade.

A fine poem, most highly appreciated by the old Confederates.

—— Forest Culture. Burke's Al., 1880.

An able paper.

—— What the Sea Said.

Mrs. Y.'s best poem, perhaps. See poem under same name by Fannie A. D. Darden and by Mollie E. Moore. Gems Tex. Quar.

No abler writer among the literary ladies of Texas.

Zavala, Lorenzo de. (Yucatan, 1788-1836). Gobernador del Estado de Mexico. Manifesto. Mexico, 1829, in-4. 39 pp. Cart.

A proclamation while Governor of the State of Mexico.

—— Ensayo histórico de las Revoluciones de Megico. 2 vols., 8vo. The first at Paris, 1831, and the second in N. Y., 1832.

This historical essay on the Revolutions of Mexico is a work of some merit, by a thorough republican with strong prejudices.

—— Viaje á los Estados Unidos del Norte-America. 8vo. Paris, 1834, and Merida de Yucatan, 4to, 1846.

One of the few books of travel in the United States worth reading. A fine picture of American manners, customs, and institutions, by a Mexican republican, with some notice of Austin's colonization in Texas.

Zavala resigned his position as Mexican Minister to France on the usurpation of Santa Anna, and retired to the United States, and later to Texas. Aided Austin in preparing for the inevitable conflict with Mexico. First Vice-President of the Republic. A true patriot and uncompromising lover of liberty.

Zuber, Wm. P. (Grimes County). An Escape from the Alamo. Tex. Al., 1873.

The substance of a purported escape from the Alamo just before its fall, by one Moses Rose, a reputed Frenchman. Rose's claim is barred by lapse of time; and much more, that of Cannon, brought up twenty years after the publication of Rose's adventure. As to all such claims presented so long after the fall of the Alamo: "Credat Judaeus Apella, non ego."

Castro, Henry. (-1894). The Republic of Mexico in 1882, with revised and corrected map.

The author was the son of the empresario Castro, and lived in San Antonio.

Fontaine, W. W. The Descent of Gen. Robert E. Lee from Robert Bruce, of Scotland. Pam. 8vo. Louisville, 1881.

Mr. F., now a Texan, has also written several historical articles and poems of merit for various periodicals.

Lester, C. Edwards. Sam Houston and His Republic. 8vo. N. Y., 1846.

A work of some literary merit, but withal such a mixture of fact and fiction as to give it the stamp of a historical romance.

— Life of Sam Houston. 402 pp., 8vo. Illustrated. N. Y., 1855.

Substantially the same work continued to a later period, with such additions as to enhance Houston's chances for the Presidency. But these, whatever they may have been, were blasted by the Civil War. Generally attributed to Lester, but issued by various publishers as anonymous. The cut in frontispiece is misleading.

Murrah, Pendleton. (S. C., -1865). Governor, 1863-5. Inaugurals and messages.

On the approach of the U.S. troops, Gov. M. retired to Mexico, where he soon died.

Runnels, Hardin R. (Miss., Tex., 1841-73). Governor, 1857-9. Inaugural and messages.

Towers, J. T. Life of Sam Houston. Pam. Washington, 184-.

Wood, Geo. T. (Ga., Tex., 1836-56). Governor, 1847-9. Inaugural and messages.

Commanded a regiment with distinction at Monterey.

---

The Mexican Constitution of 1824. Constitucion Federal de los Estados Unidos Mexicanos. 28 pp., 8vo; index 2 pp. Mexico, October, 1824.

The work of the Constituent Congress, the most august political body on this continent since the Constitutional Convention of 1787 in Philadelphia. Its presiding officer was Lorenzo de Zavala, later Vice-President of the Republic of Texas, and Ramos Arizpe was chairman of the Committee on the Constitution. He reported his Projet of 40 articles for a constitution on November 20, about two weeks after the opening of the session. This was the basis or rough draft of the perfected Constitution of 1824, with its threefold division of powers and 171 articles. Under the Acta Constitutiva creating the Federal system of government, Coahuila and Texas became one of the States of the Federation, Texas to be a separate State as soon as she had the necessary elements.

Zavala signed the Constitution as President of the Congress and as deputy from Yucatan; while the names of Ramos Arizpe and Erasmo Seguin, appeared as deputies from the State of Coahuila and Texas. All the members signed their names as deputies from their respective States and Territories.

Fredonian Declaration of Independence. Nacogdoches, December 16, 1826. Foote's Texas and Texans, Vol. i, p. 251.

No laws.

Constitution State of Coahuila and Texas. Constitucion Politica del Estado Libre de Coahuila y Texas. 31 pp., 8vo. March 11, 1827. Saltillo.
[237]

Signed by Santiago del Valle, President; J. Vicente Campos, Vice President, and eight others, and attested by Jose Ignacio de Arizpe and Juan Antonio Padilla, Secretary.

Laws and Decrees of the State of Coahuila and Texas, in Spanish and English; to which is added the Constitution of said State; also the Colonization Law of the State of Tamaulipas, and Naturalization Law of the General Congress. By order of the Secretary of State. Translated by J. P. Kimball, M. D. Houston, 1839. 8vo. Sheep. 353 pp. Index to the Laws and Decrees, pp. 1-6. Index to the Constitution on next leaf. Errata in the Spanish, pp. 1-4. Errata in the English, opposite side last leaf. Omissions and corrections on next leaf, and two lines on opposite side. 1824-1835. Houston, 1839.

There were 325 decrees in all, 29 of which antedated the Constitution. The last was on May 21, 1835.

Convention at San Felipe. (1832. President, S. F. Austin.) Proceedings of the General Convention of Delegates representing the Citizens and Inhabitants of Texas. Held at the town of San Felipe, in Austin's Colony, October 1-6, 1832. 35 pp., 8vo. Brazoria, 1832.

The first political convention ever held in Texas. Frank W. Johnson, secretary. The chief measure was a Memorial to the General Congress, that Texas should be separated from Coahuila and admitted as a State into the Mexican Confederacy.

— Convention of the People of Texas at San Felipe de Austin, April 1 —, 1833. President, Wm. H. Wharton.

No journal of the proceedings of the second San Felipe Convention known to have been published. In this convention Sam Houston made his debut before the Texas public as a delegate from Nacogdoches. The best work of the convention was Burnet's Memorial to the Mexican Congress to admit Texas into the Union as a separate State, and the proposed constitution for Texas, reported by Sam Houston, chairman of the Committee on Constitution. It fell on S. F. Austin to present the Memorial and the Constitution. It was a bootless mission at best; as Santa Anna was then on the eve of subverting the Federal system, crushing all the States.

Consultation. (1835. President, Dr. B. T. Archer.) Journals of the Consultation held at San Felipe de Austin, October 16 to November 14, 1835. 54 pp., 8vo. Houston, 1838.

The principal Ordinances and Decrees of this revolutionary body were: The quasi Declaration of Independence; the Solemn Decree in favor of the Cherokees; the organization of a Provisional Government, with Henry Smith as Governor, and a Legislative Council, and Sam Houston as Commander in Chief of the Armies of Texas.

General Council. (1835-36. President, Jas. W. Robinson.) Journal of the Proceedings of the General Council of the Republic of Texas, at San Felipe de Austin, from November 14, 1835, to March 1, 1836. 363 pp., 8vo. Houston, 1839.

This in fact is a report of the operations of the Provisional Government; the work of Gov. Smith, Gen. Houston, and the Council, and of their dissensions.

Ordinances and Decrees of the Provisional Government. 150 pp. Index. pp. 151-56. Houston, 1838.

Goliad Declaration of Independence. December 20, 1835.

No laws.

Convention at Washington. (1836. President, Richard Ellis.) Journal of the Convention held at Washington, on the Brazos, March 1-17, 1836. Pam. 109 pp., 8vo. Houston, 1839.

This body fulminated an absolute Declaration of Independence and framed a Constitution while the enemy was thundering at the gates. First copy of the Constitution published in Texas in T. and T. R., August 9, 1836, and used by the Texan Congress.

The Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the Republic bound together. 25 pp. Houston, 1838.

Collation of the Laws of the Republic.

MANUSCRIPTS, MAPS, AND NEWSPAPERS.

Manuscripts in Department of State. Journals, Ordinances, and Decrees of the Consultation in 1835, on the beginning of Anglo-American rule in Texas; with the acts of the subsequent conventions, and of the co-ordinate departments of government, including treaties and diplomatic correspondence of the Republic and the acts of the State government in all its departments.

Manuscripts in State Library. More than 5000 MSS., turned over by the Department of State in 1878. Consisting of the Archives of Nacogdoches, and those of Bexar and La Bahia in part. Begin about 1740, and continue in Spanish up to 1835. In the eighteenth century mostly instructions from the viceroys, reports of the Visitadors on the state of the country, and papers relating specially to the missions and presidios. Also many papers on the events of the Mexican Revolution, and later on, the colonization of Texas under Mexican authority, together with many interesting letters from Stephen F. Austin.

In English, the W. D. Miller papers, a fine historical collection, 1833-60.

The whole collection needs classification and new arrangement, with a view to its being printed by the State.

Lieut. W. A. Tennison. Naval papers. Several hundred; unclassified but very important.

Tennison, as agent for Texas, transferred the Texan navy to H. G. Runnels, agent for the United States, June, 1846. In possession of E. J. Cornibe, Waco.

Dr. Ashbel Smith. Chiefly historical and diplomatic, and quite valuable. To go by bequest to the University of Texas.

Archives of Bexar. A large number of miscellaneous MSS. in County Clerk's office in San Antonio.

The Texas Historical Society. Galveston. About 200 miscellaneous MSS., unclassified.

Among the most important are: The Memoirs of Capt. Randal Jones, of Fort Bend county (48 pp., 1786-1829), and Jas. D. McCutchan's Narrative of the Mier Expedition. Also an ancient Spanish map of Texas, the best that I have ever examined. No date, but evidently issued early in this century.

Guy M. Bryan Collection and Classification MSS.

Class A. Moses Austin, and all matters relating to S. F. Austin's arrangements for colonization, both in and out of Texas. 32 papers or packages.

Class B. All matters relating to S. F. Austin's trip to and stay in the City of Mexico in 1822-23. 18 papers or packages.

Class C. Matters relating to Austin's contract of 300 families. 15 papers or packages.

Class D. Everything relating to Austin's additional contracts; also Austin & Williams' contract. 169 papers or packages.

Class E. Internal colonial affairs, comprehending the colonists' doings towards Austin; his toward them; theirs toward each other. 251 papers or packages.

Class F. Causes and establishment of Fredonian Republic, and Austin's relation thereto. 1 paper or package.

Class G. Difficulties of 1832, and Austin's relation to same. Also, matter relative to Convention of 1833, which sent Austin City of Mexico. 28 papers or packages.

Class H. Matters concerning Austin's imprisonment and long detention in City of Mexico. 50 papers or packages.

Class I. Transactions people of Texas during Austin's imprisonment up to August 31, 1835. 14 papers or packages.

Class J. Austin's efforts on his return from Mexico to place Texas in a condition to meet the emergencies of 1835. 11 papers or packages.

Class K. Austin's command of the army, and his appointment as commissioner to the United States. 66 papers or packages.

Class L. The Consultation and Provisional Government, and convention, March, 1836, and creation of permanent government in Texas. 12 papers or packages.

Class M. Matters relating to Burnet's administration and campaign of 1836. 25 papers or packages.

Class N. Austin's acts as commissioner to the United States. His return to Texas, and candidacy for presidency, 1836. 36 papers or packages.

Class O. Election of Houston President; Austin's appointment as Secretary of State, and death. 15 papers or packages.

Class P. All matters relating to Indian troubles in Texas. One package, arranged according to date.

Class Q. Miscellaneous. 157 papers or packages.

Class R. One book containing biography of S. F. Austin, written by Guy M. Bryan.

Class S. One package, containing subject matter for writing a history of Texas. Compiled by Guy M. Bryan and Mrs. Mary Holley. Index attached to package.

Old Map La Bahia. Town plat, with streets, etc.

Among these papers is Lewis' journal, showing that Austin's schooner, "The Lively," turned pirate in 1821, instead of foundering at sea, as generally stated; and W. T. Austin's journal of the Campaign of Bexar, the only consecutive history of that campaign ever written. Austin's original anti-slavery letters are in this collection, Mr. Fontaine having only copies. (See AUSTIN, S. F., in text.) Austin's Projet for a Constitution for Mexico also included; if the same as the Projet submitted by Arizpe it is the original of the Acta Constitutiva, or rough draft of the Mexican Constitution of 1824. (See Guy M. Bryan's remarks on this subject at the Fort Worth meeting of the Veterans in 1891.) This is the finest collection of Austiniana to be found anywhere, and it is indispensable to a true history of Texas, though never yet utilized.

Maps in the State Library.

Hennepin's Map. Amplissimae Regionis Mississipi seu Provinciae Ludovicianaë, à R. P. Ludovico Hennepin, Anno 1687, detectae nunc Gallorum Coloniis et Actionum Negotiis toto Orbe celeberrimae Nova Tabula edita à Io Bapt. Homanno S. C. M. Geographo Noremburgae.

This map of Louisiana includes the territory now called Texas.

TEXAS VETERANS AND DAUGHTERS OF THE REPUBLIC.

---

Texas Veterans. The veterans of early Texas, pursuant to a call made by Gen. J. B. Robertson, at Corsicana, convened in the city of Houston, May 13, 1873, and effected the next day an organization under the name of "The Texas Veteran Association." Guy M. Bryan delivered an appropriate address, and a constitution was adopted.

President, F. W. Johnson; First Vice-President, W. J. Russell; Second Vice-President, Walter P. Lane; Secretary, Geo. Bringhurst, M. A. Bryan having declined the honor.

Since 1873 there have been annual meetings of the veterans at various cities in the State, and publications of their proceedings, including addresses.

The twenty-second or last annual meeting at Houston, April 20-22, 1895.

Welcome address by Judge N. G. Kittrell, and response by the veteran Ex-Gov. Francis R. Lubbock.

Memorial address by Rev. Geo. C. Rankin, in honor of the twenty-seven dead members since the last meeting. Messrs. Lubbock, Darden, and Claiborne also spoke, but briefly, in testimony of the virtues of their departed comrades.

The Daughters of the Republic received the thanks of the Veterans for having done so much to make their reunion a success, especially for securing steamboat transportation to the battlefield of San Jacinto, and the elegant dinner on the ground.

One of the objects of this worthy association is to preserve "the name of every soldier and seaman of the Republic of Texas;" and another is "to bring about a more intimate acquaintance and intercourse for mutual assistance." Eligibility to membership depends upon the rendition of honorable service to Texas, civil or military, from 1820 to 1845. The veterans of the heroic times of Texas, who brought an empire into the Union, are rapidly passing to the other life; but their deeds will always be held in grateful remembrance by the lovers of liberty.

The present officers: President, Guy M. Bryan; First Vice-President, J. M. Hill; Second Vice-President, Fred Gentry; Secretary, Stephen H. Darden; Assistant Secretary and Treasurer, F. R. Lubbock; Marshal, J. R. Fenn; Chaplain, J. M. Wesson.

Daughters of the Republic. The Daughters of the Republic of Texas organized at Houston in the fall of 1891, at the residence of Mrs. Andrew Briscoe, representatives being present from Galveston, Brazoria and Harris counties. The prime movers in the matter appear to have been Miss Hallie B. Bryan and Miss Bettie Ballinger. The officers elected were: President, Mrs. Auson Jones; Vice-Presidents, Mrs. Briscoe, Mrs. W. P. Ballinger, Mrs. W. E. Kendall; Secretary, Mrs. E. H. Vasmer; Treasurer, Miss Belle Fenn.

The objects of the association:

(1) To perpetuate the memory and spirit of the men and women who achieved and maintained the independence of Texas.

(2) To encourage historical research into the earliest records of Texas, especially those relating to the revolution of 1835 and the events which followed; to foster the preservation of documents and relics; and to encourage the publication of records of individual service of soldiers and patriots of the Republic.

(3) To promote the celebration of March 2d (Independence Day) and April 21st (San Jacinto Day); to secure and hallow historic spots, by erecting monuments thereon; and to cherish and preserve the unity of Texas, as achieved and established by the fathers and mothers of the Texas Revolution.

Any woman may be eligible for membership who is of the age of eighteen years, and whose ancestors were of the Old Three Hundred, or were soldiers, seamen or civil officers of the State of Coahuila and Texas, who aided in establishing the independence of Texas, or served the Republic of Texas in maintaining its independence up to its annexation to the United States, February 19, 1846. Widows and wives of men who rendered such services are also eligible to membership.

Auxiliary Chapters:

1. Sidney Sherman, Galveston. President, Mrs. Betty Ballinger; Secretary, Carrie Franklin Kemp.
2. San Jacinto, Houston. President, Mrs. J. R. Fenn; Secretary, Jennie Hunter.
3. Wm. B. Travis, Austin. President, Mrs. Rebecca J. Fisher; Secretary, Ella Dancy Hall.
4. Sam Houston, Lampasas. President, Mrs. Elizabeth Huling; Secretary, Nannie Hardin Skinner.
5. Stephen F. Austin, Brazoria. President, Mrs. Jno. Adriance; Secretary, Miss Kate Underwood.
6. ———, Brenham. President, Mrs. Maggie Houston Williams; Secretary, Miss Madge Houston Williams.
7. De Zavala, San Antonio. President, Miss A. De Zavala; Secretary, Miss M. Fisk.
8. Thos. J. Rusk, Dallas.

List of officers elected at Waco, Texas, April 20, 1894: President, Mrs. Anson Jones; First Vice-President, Mrs. M. J. Briscoe; Second Vice-President, Mrs. Rebecca J. Fisher; Third Vice-President, Mrs. W. E. Kendall; Historian, Miss Betty Ballinger; Secretary, Mrs. E. H. Vasmer; Assistant Secretary, Mrs. J. J. McKeever, Jr.; Treasurer, Miss Belle Fenn. Executive Committee—Mrs. M. Looscan, Chairman; Miss Betty Ballinger, Miss Hally Bryan, Secretary, Miss Emily Perry, Mrs. Cornelia B. Stone, Mrs. J. J. McKeever, Jr.

Mrs. Fisher has been successful in collecting many articles of historic interest for William B. Travis Chapter, which are of great value to this State and the entire nation. Among these valuable and interesting reliques are those which were the personal property of Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston, Gen. Rusk and William B. Travis, all of which she has carefully deposited in the State capitol.

The Burnet-Sherman Monument, at Galveston, is the work of the Sidney Sherman Chapter.

The Sam Houston Chapter has undertaken, with the assistance of the other Chapters, to have erected a suitable monument on the battlefield of San Jacinto.
